FOUR THOUSAND SAILORS OF RUSSIA IN REVOLT

Czar's Stronghold in Black Sea Is Menaced by Mutineers.

CRITICAL SITUATION

Commander of the Fortress Is a Captive and Other Officers Are Shot.

ARMY IS ALSO IN REBELLION

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

SEBASTOPOL, Nov. 25.—(Delayed.)—The long expected mutiny of sailors, who have been on the verge of revolt for months, has come and Russia's stronghold on the Black sea is in danger of falling completely into their hands. The situation is very critical. All the shore equipages, numbering 4,000 men, are in open rebellion, having driven away or taken their officers prisoners. The Brest regiment of infantry has gone over in a body to the mutineers. Gen. Nepluieff, the commander of the fortress, is a captive. The Bielostok regiment, the only other regiment in the city, received the mutineers with cheers, but thus far it remains loyal. Some of the artillerists have also joined the men in revolt. Besides the Bielostok regiment there are two battalions of artillery and a battalion of the fortress artillery here.

The Euxine fleet is standing in the offing and is still obeying the orders of Vice Admiral Chouknin, but the crews are disaffected and there is grave doubt whether they can be restrained from joining the mutineers and greater doubt that they will fire upon them. The Seventh army corps and the commander of the corps have been hastily summoned from Simferopol, eight hours distant.

Planned by Revolutionists.

There is every evidence that the mutiny was deliberately and perfectly planned by the Social Revolutionists who have been pushing their propaganda with great energy since the St. Petersburg strike was organized to save the Cronstadt mutineers.

Friday eight sailors at the barracks seized, disarmed and dispelled their officers. They then assembled a great meeting. Rear Admiral Pisarevski, commander of the practice squadron, supported by a company from the Brest regiment, went to the meeting and when it refused to disperse ordered the troops to fire. Instead of shooting the mutineers, however, two shots rang out and Capt. Stein of the company fell dead and Rear Admiral Pisarevski received a ball in the shoulder.

During the night the sailors with the aid of the Social Democrat leaders, having learned a lesson from the less prudent mutineers at Cronstadt, elected officers and decided upon a program, pledging themselves not only not to pillage, kill or drink vodka, but to take measures to prevent rowdyism.

This morning (Saturday) they were joined by the workmen of the port and at 11 o'clock, in complete order, the sailors carrying the banner of St. George and the workmen red flags, marched to the barracks of the Brest regiment. The officers of the Brest regiment threatened to fire upon the mutineers, but Gen. Nepluieff, a colonel and five other officers surrendered and were sent under escort to the marine prison.

Ten Thousand in Parade.

Being reinforced by the rank and file of the entire regiment the mutineers and workmen formed a procession composed of 10,000 men and marched through the city. At Novissisteff place the procession encountered several companies of the Bielostok regiment with a machine gun battery. The mutineers approached, their bands playing the national anthem, and the soldiers received the procession with full military honors, presenting arms and exchanging cheers. But the Bielostok men resisted the appeals of the mutineers to join them and, obeying the orders of Col. Schulman, marched off toward the road leading to Palaklava. The battery, however, remained with the mutineers and participated in the meeting.

In the afternoon the sailors of the barracks signalled the comrades aboard the warships to join them and also sent a deputation to Vice Admiral Chouknin, requesting him to come to the sailors' barracks and hear their grievances. But the admiral in a short speech, in which he pointed out the madness and criminality of their actions and the dreadful penalties to which they had subjected themselves, declined to accede to the request.

The sailors thus far have comported themselves well. The city is panic stricken and the inhabitants are fleeing. This evening the mutineers stopped the trains in order to prevent the arrival of troops from Simferopol and many persons left on foot and in cabs, wagons, or any other kind of vehicle available.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A dispatch to a news agency from Vladivostok dated November 25, says:

"A number of Russian troops who were taken prisoners at Port Arthur and who were recently returned here for enrollment in the local garrison revolted today, killing two of their officers and wounding five others. The reasons for the revolt are not known."

Promised Support of Battleship.

SEBASTOPOL, Nov. 26.—Though the mutinous sailors have not yet submitted but on the contrary have received promises of support from the crews of the battleship Pantelmeion (formerly the Kniaz Potemkine), and the cruiser Otchakoff, and though they are in complete possession of "Admiralty point," where the

NO THANKSGIVING FOR RUSSIAN SUFFERERS

Czar Nicholas at the Head of His Troop.

"Then I began to think that it is very true, which is commonly said, that the one-half of the world knoweth not how the other half liveth."

Francis Rabelais, the French author-scientist, gave expression to this conviction early in the sixteenth century when the world was much smaller than it is today. But with world-growth has come world-knowledge and we, today, with the telegraph and the press, have the means for ascertaining the conditions and tribulations of our fellow-men in all lands.

The American housewife who this week will enter upon her quest for the choicest turkey and the very reddest cranberries will do so with the knowledge that the women of far-off, snow-clad Russia, who have survived the knife of human butchers, are grasping for bread for themselves and their own. The prosperous American husband, father, and brother who will leave the house some morning this week with the promise that he will look after the purchase of the fruit and nuts which are to assist in making the Thanksgiving dinner table attractive, will also have this knowledge of how the other half of the world is trying to live.

Rabelais lived in another age. Today we apprehend the conditions that exist afar, but they are not always comprehended, in the sense of full realism. Yet there are pleasant evidences to the contrary. The liberal support of The Gazette fund for the wretched and hungry survivors of the appalling massacres in Russia during the past speaks well for the advancement of civilization since the days of Rabelais.

The Gazette fund was established on November 17 and in little more than a week has grown close upon the $5,000 mark. When it is remembered that nearly $7,000 was contributed by some of the leading merchants and citizens of the city before this fund was established and that our leading philanthropists have turned their bequests into the national fund treasury direct, the amount of the contributions is a tribute to Pittsburgh and Pittsburghers. The growth of The Gazette fund, day by day, has been as follows:

November 17	$ 430.00
November 18	508.25
November 19	113.09
November 20	864.00
November 21	1,228.75

FLEET OF POWERS IS IN TURKISH WATERS

The Sultan Shows First Sign of Yielding to International Demands.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 26.—The fleet of allied powers arrived at the island of Mytilene today.

A further sign of the yielding attitude of the porte is that the foreign minister, Tewfik Pasha, yesterday visited the British ambassador, Sir Nicholas R. O'Connor, and the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, Baron von Calice, with the object of proposing a modification of the Macedonian reform scheme by which the financial delegates of the powers in Macedonia should be appointed by the porte and designated as Ottoman financial councillors.

It is doubtful whether the powers will accept this modification, but the position is more hopeful as this is the first time any visit has been made between the porte and the ambassadors since October 27, when the porte refused the request of the ambassadors for a collective audience of the sultan, with the exception of the German ambassador, Baron von Bieberstein, who on three occasions during this interval visited Tewfik Pasha. The last conference between the ambassadors and the minister was held Friday last and it was a prolonged one.

KILLS WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Because He Was Jealous of an Allegheny Man, a Miner Commits Murder and Suicide.

LATROBE, PA., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Mad with jealously, Steven Czintei shot and killed his wife and then himself at their home in Dorothy, a little mining village a mile west of here, this afternoon. The couple was married three months ago. Czintei was aged 23 and his wife aged 26. The husband was insanely jealous of an Allegheny butcher, and had stated he would kill either him or himself. Soon after going to his home early this afternoon shots were heard and neighbors rushed to the house. The bodies of Czintel and his wife were found lying on the floor. He was already dead and the woman died a half hour later without regaining consciousness. A 32-calibre revolver was found near Czintel's body.

Coroner Wynn held an inquest this evening and found a verdict of murder and suicide.

ACCIDENT WILL IMPROVE YOUNG ROOSEVELT'S NOSE

BOSTON, MASS., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., thanks to the football accident of two weeks ago which broke his nose, will hereafter wear a nasal organ of better shape than nature gave him. Dr. John W. Farlow, the Boston specialist, who set the broken nose, today said that even the slight crookedness which formerly was apparent, has been removed.

M'CURDY FAMILY RESIGNS FROM MUTUAL

The President, His Son and Son-in-Law Quit the Life Insurance Company.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Richard A. McCurdy, president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, has resigned. The date of his resignation depends only on the time required by the trustees to find his successor. The investigating committee did not accept Mr. McCurdy's offer to cut his salary in half, because such acceptance would have pledged them to a continuance of the McCurdy regime.

Quickly following the retirement of President McCurdy, his son, Robert H. McCurdy, general manager of the Mutual, and his son-in-law, Louis A. Thebaud, the favored general agent for New York, have resigned. Each of these three men has been drawing approximately $150,000 a year in salaries and commissions from the company, besides their indirect profits in financial transactions with Mutual money.

A tentative offer to head the company was made to James B. Forgan, president of the First National bank of Chicago, who once was an Equitable director. Mr. Forgan declined to consider the offer.

Expert accountants are diving into every financial transaction of the McCurdy regime. High officers are being summoned before the committe to explain the system of using policyholders' money for private advantage. Like President Alexander of the Equitable, McCurdy has retired to his home ill.

WILL BE SENTENCED TODAY.

Senator Burton Must Appear in Court at St. Louis—Will Ask for New Trial.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26.—United States Senator J. Ralph Burton of Kansas, convicted this morning on all six counts of an indictment charging that he agreed to receive and did receive compensation in St. Louis for practicing as an attorney for the Rialto Grain and Securities Company of St. Louis, before the postoffice department in Washington while a senator, will be called before Judge Van de Vanter tomorrow morning to receive sentence. The maximum penalty for the offense is imprisonment for two years and a fine of $10,000 on each of the six counts.

Senator Burton's attorneys tonight said that they would immediately ask for a new trial. If Judge Van de Vanter overrules the motion, a notice of appeal will be filed.

TAKE NEGRO FROM SHERIFF AND HANG HIM IN CHURCH

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Nov. 26.—Monsie Williams, a negro, was lynched at Tangipahoa, La., today, for connection with the attempted assault upon Mrs. George, an aged white farmer's wife, a week ago. He is said to have confessed having kept watch for the principal in the affair, under compulsion. A crowd took him away from the sheriff, drove him to a negro church in the woods and made an example of him.

COLD WAVE IS COMING FROM THE NORTHWEST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Storm warnings are displayed on the Pacific coast and cold wave warnings in Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota.

GAMBLERS CHEAT AND MURDERS ARE RESULT

One Player Almost Decapitated and Another Dying—Capture Both Fugitives.

Because Leon Lemugelli dealt himself seven cards in a poker game last night with Antonio DeFarco in a boarding house at 1629 Penn avenue, a duel ensued which resulted in the murder of the latter. On a cot in St. Francis hospital Joseph Gualtan is dying from a dagger wound in the lungs inflicted by Bruno Carachio, with whom he had been playing cards in Sharpsburg, and had accused of cheating.

In the game in the Penn avenue boarding house DeFarco held a magic hand—aces on eights—but the moment it fell to him he saw his opponent steal two cards. Instantly both men sprang to their feet for battle to death. Lemugelli drew a razor and slashed it twice across the left side of his adversary's neck, severing the vital arteries at the base of the brain. With a wild shriek DeFarco staggered up a narrow stairway and died within 10 minutes.

Fled from Scene of Death.

Lemugelli grabbed the money from the table and darted out of the back door with the blood of his victim dripping from his fingers. He was arrested at the Union station at midnight while buying a ticket to Chicago.

The men are boarders at the Italian establishment conducted by Mrs. Marie Paducca at a house in the tenements known as "Schoenberger's row." Yesterday evening they enjoyed their supper together and when the victuals had been cleared away they staked their earnings on a game of poker. They had been play-

CAN A CHRISTIAN BECOME MAYOR OF DISSOLUTE ALLEGHENY?

Pastor Asks If the Next Executive Will Be a Man of Character.

FEARS IT'S TOO SOON

Wave of Reform Has Not Yet Reached the Municipality on the North Side.

CONDEMNS ADMINISTRATION

"A Christian mayor? To hell with a Christian mayor! We want Sunday beer!"

"This," said the Rev. Albert C. Dieffenbach in the pulpit of the Reformed Church of the Ascension, Allegheny, last evening, "is the cry I hear in answer to the plea: 'Dare we elect a Christian mayor in Allegheny?'"

The Rev. Mr. Dieffenbach made the last question the subject for his sermon, giving voice to the impression that the city was not yet ripe for an independent and non-partisan candidate, said in part:

"Let us look at the present administration. Where is the rottenness of this regime? Chiefly in the very place which is instituted to conserve the moral life of the community. Think of calling it the department of public safety. A better name would be the department for the protection of vice. I cannot think of a species of viciousness which we may not expect from this stench hole.

Still the Great Unwashed.

"There are intelligent men who point to the wave of reform that is sweeping the country and fervidly declare: 'Allegheny is redsy for reform—the real thing.' I do not share in such opinion. The chief reason for my feeling is the fact that the wave of protest against dishonesty has not reached our municipal shores. Truly, we are still the great unwashed. The person who, in the coming campaign for a mayor who will protect our civil life, sees an upheaval and a revolution, is dreaming dreams. We are not yet risen to the plane where the simple rules of goodness control us in our municipal affairs. It is only sensible for us to face the facts. In the broadest sense, the city is not fit for a thoroughly independent and non-partisan candidate.

"Whether we like it or not, the man who will receive the nomination will be a man from one of the parties—probably the Republican party. Now, while I believe that there is a constant movement among Americans the country over to become independent in voting, and while the lines of partisanship are diminishing, there is yet a function for the party and for the partisan. My question therefore, this evening, is advisedly put: 'Dare we have a Christian mayor in Allegheny?'

Demand for a Clean Man.

"But we may get from within the party a man who will fill the present requirements. By a Christian mayor let us understand a man who governs his life, and hence will govern the city, according to the Christian virtues of hardihood, good sense, business ability, honesty, temperance, sex cleanness and fearlessness in executing our plentiful laws. The repugnance in the mind of the average citizen when he hears the name Christian is due to the fact that he thinks we mean some vague, impractical, non-resistant creature, whose highest office seems to be ministering of some soft, infantile pabulum, which has too long passed for the stuff of which religion is made. I should rather bear the ills we have than fly to such a man for the salvation of Allegheny.

"And yet, on the other hand, we are surrounded by men, so-called politicians, who give no sign by their conduct or affiliations, that they are interested in the promotion of the virtues of Christ. Do they belong to the church? No. Do they support, with their fat purses, the train-

BIGELOW SAYS MILLIONAIRES ASK HIM TO RUN FOR MAYOR

Director Declares They Tell Him They Would Support and Elect Him—Others Urge Him to Become the Candidate.

Director Bigelow says he is being importuned by many people to make the race himself for mayor of Pittsburgh in February, but he has turned a deaf ear so far to the proposition.

"Many people have urged me to run for mayor. Several millionaires have asked me to run, have assured me of their support and told me that I could be elected, but I could not be persuaded," said Mr. Bigelow. "I have a lot out in Homewood cemetery, but I do not care to occupy it for awhile yet. They could put me there if I should ever run for mayor."

Mr. Bigelow does not deny the impeachment that he would like to be mayor in name, as well as in fact, as he is generally credited with being in the present city administration, but he claims the condition of his health will not permit him to stand the physical strain of a strenuous campaign for mayor of Pittsburgh. The director of public works has not, however, shown any serious physical effects from a hard political fight such as the one just closed. In fact, his friends have often remarked that he seemed to thrive in health in a political fight and to gain flesh when he was engaged in some contest in councils.

Mr. Bigelow says he could not enter a campaign where he was a candidate himself without making a personal canvass of the whole city, going through every ward, workshop and business establishment and every conceivable place where there might be a vote to win. While recognizing this would be a necessity, he has a strong aversion to this sort of campaigning. Owing to the refusal of James W. Brown and other prospective candidates to accept the administration candidacy for mayor, it is possible that Mr. Bigelow may be yet forced by his own organization to become its standard bearer.

EIGHTEEN DEAD; TWENTY-FIVE SERIOUSLY INJURED

A Collision of Passenger Trains Causes Horrible Disaster.

BODIES INCINERATED

The Night Express from Boston Crashes Into Rear of an Accommodation.

SIGNALS OBSCURED BY FOG

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

LINCOLN, MASS., Nov. 26.—Eighteen persons were killed, 25 were seriously injured and probably a score of others cut and bruised in the most disastrous railroad wreck recorded in this state for many years. The wreck occurred at 8:15 o'clock tonight at Bakers Bridge station, a mile and a half west of Lincoln, on the main line of the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine railroad. The regular Sunday night express which left Boston at 7:45 o'clock for Montreal by way of the Rutland system, crashed into the rear of an accommodation train bound for points on the Marlboro branch line, and which started from Boston at 7:15.

A partial list of the dead is as follows:

JOHN LYONS, fireman of the Montreal train.
ANNA HILLBRIDGE, aged 5 years, Acton.
DANIEL WEATHERBEE, Acton.
MAY CAMPBELL, Maynard.
WILLIAM J. BARRIS, Maynard.
THREE-YEAR-OLD CHILD of Mr. Barris.
MAY COLLINS, Concord Junction.
NELLIE SWEENEY, Concord.
HARRY MAGANO, Concord.
SEVEN UNIDENTIFIED BODIES.

The following injured persons were taken to the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston: Harry Broadbent, Maynard; Andrew Carlson, Maynard, condition serious; Savario Vando, Sanford, condition serious; Andrew K. Lane, address not known; Mabel Hastings, South Acton; Nicholas Holbeck, Maynard; Harry Yant, South Acton, condition critical; Matthew Campbell, Maynard; Margaret Campbell, serious; Mrs. Clara Fuller, Leminster, condition serious; Mrs. Albert Bentley, Maynard, crushed thigh, condition critical; Mrs. William Harris, Maynard; Anna Klaven; Peter Weston, Maynard. Among others injured who were treated near the scene of the wreck were the following: Hoke Smith, Concord; Mr. and Mrs. John Davis and their daughters Bessie and Maud, of Maynard.

There were 13 corpses taken from the wreck and three died soon after being removed. Three bodies were headless. Two skulls were found and a man's head with a full beard was picked up. It is difficult to fix the exact number of those who perished, but it is thought it will not exceed 18.

Of the dead, a dozen were passengers in the two rear cars of the Marlboro train. No passenger on the express train was injured. Of those who lost their lives, a number were apparently killed instantly in the collision, while others were either burned to death or died from suffocation.

The wreck was primarily due to thick weather which apparently obscured signals set by the forward train, which at the time of the disaster was standing in front of Bakers Bridge station. The Montreal train, drawn by two locomotives and consisting also of nine cars, crashed into the rear of the Marlboro branch local, demolishing the two rear cars.

Passengers Burned to Death.

All of the passengers killed and seriously injured were in these. The passengers lived in Concord, West Acton, Maynard, Hudson, Marlboro, and several smaller towns in the Assabet valley. None of the passengers on the Montreal train was seriously hurt, but the engineer and fireman of the leading locomotive were killed.

The wreckage caught fire and some of the passengers were incinerated. Few persons live in the vicinity of Bakers Bridge station, and no fire department was available, so that the flames practically burned themselves out. The uninjured passengers and a number of train hands, assisted by villagers, went to the aid of the injured and many persons were rescued.

A special train was sent from Boston by the Boston & Maine management at 9:35 o'clock, and reached here inside of a half hour. The train brought a number of doctors, while many doctors from Waltham and other places in this section were sent to the scene in carriages and by other trains.

Made Temporary Hospitals.

The railroad station and a number of dwelling houses were turned into temporary hospitals, and many volunteer nurses assisted in relieving the suffering of the injured.

Owing to the heavy local traffic the Marlboro branch train was behind time when it reached Bakers Bridge. According to the statement of persons who were at the depot there, a brakeman was sent to place a fuse or red fire torch some distance in the rear. The night was unusually dark, owing to a dense mist. According to those at the station at the time the torch had not been set more than a minute before the roar of a heavy train around a curve a short distance east of the depot was heard. Within a few seconds the headlight of an on-rushing locomotive showed through the mist and before a hand could be lifted to warn the passengers in the waiting train, the two ponderous engines crashed into it. The impact was terrific and instantly there was an indescribable scene of death and ruin.

ALIEN INFLUX GROWS AT AN APPALLING PACE

Over One Million Immigrants Landed in Last Fiscal Year.

BIG CITIES GORGED

STARTLING FIGURES COMPILED

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Room 10, Postal Building, WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 26.

Some conception of the vastness of the turbid stream of immigration that is flowing into this country can be obtained from the fact that for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, the total number of alien arrivals at the ocean and land boundary ports of the United States was 1,026,499. This is the greatest number that ever applied for admission during one year in the history of the country.

The next greatest year was 1903, when the number was 857,046. For 1904 the number was 812,870. From present indications the record of the current year will exceed that of 1905. The immigration from all countries during last September was 78,941. This is an increase of 1 per cent over the same month of 1903. September is the most recent month for which the figures are available at the Bureau of Immigration. Reports are delayed to await the returns from Honolulu and Porto Rico.

If nothing else avails to call the attention of congress to the question of immigration and urges it to act, this great total of 1,026,499 foreigners coming into the United States in one year to compete with American labor and enjoy the privileges of American citizenship would seem to be sufficient. Eastern members of congress would be expected to especially interest themselves in the matter if they stopped to consider the effect this immigration has upon their several states. The natural inquiry is, Where does this large number of people go?

Gorge the Large Cities.

Commissioner General Sargent has made a very exhaustive analysis of the records of his bureau and finds that 315,541 were destined to New York, which is 31 per cent of the whole; Pennsylvania, 210,708, or 20 3-10 per cent; Massachusetts, 72,160, or 7 per cent; Illinois, 72,700, or 7 per cent; New Jersey, 57,258, or 5 7-10 per cent; and Ohio, 49,351, or 5 per cent. Thus it will be observed that of the 1,026,499 arrivals for 1905, 777,748, or 76 per cent, remained in the states mentioned, and the remainder went to the other states and territories. It may be of interest to know that the Rocky Mountain region and the west received but 43,571, or 4 per cent; the states south of the Mason and Dixon line, 46,543, or 4½ per cent. Maryland, West Virginia and Florida each received nearly 9,000; Louisiana, 5,000; Texas 4,000, and but 11,000 going to the other 13 states of that section. Kentucky received but 618; Tennessee 782; North Carolina 183, South Carolina 328, and Georgia 518. Arkansas received 422; Indian territory 438 and Oklahoma 260.

It will be noted that the greater number of arriving aliens were destined to the densely populated parts of the country, while those states which have a large acreage to till and offer splendid opportunities, both in agriculture and industries, and where there seems to be a growing demand for labor, received but a small number.

Many Are Undesirable.

During the past fiscal year the greatest number of arrivals came from Austria-Hungary, which sent 275,693, or 27 per cent; Italy, 221,479, or 22 per cent, and Russia 184,897, or 18 per cent. From Germany there came 40,574, which is a decrease of 6 per cent from that which came during 1904. Norway, Denmark and Sweden sent 60,625, which is a decrease of 8 per cent of the number sent in 1904; England sent 64,769 and Ireland 52,945, which is an increase over 1904 of 6 per cent and 5 per cent, respectively. The percentage from Austria-Hungary has increased from 22 per cent in 1904 to 27 per cent in 1905. The proportion from Russia remains about the same, while Italy has decreased from 24 per cent to 22 per cent.

During the past fiscal year 11,879 were denied admission and returned to the country whence they came. Of this number nearly 8,000 were paupers; 2,000 diseased; 1,000 came in violation of the alien contract labor law, and the remainder was made up of convicts, immoral characters and others. During the fiscal year 1903 there were 8,769 and 1904 there were 7,994 deported. Of the number that were landed there were many who were afterward found to be undesirable and here in violation of law, but on account of statements made by their relatives or alleged relatives (frequently the latter), they were permitted to land. In addition to those who were denied admission at the ports of entry during the year 1905, the department was required to deport 845 who were found in the United States in violation of law and for causes which existed prior to landing. This shows that too much care cannot be exercised in the inspection of aliens seeking admission.

Beyond Reach of the Law.

One of the most important paragraphs in the annual report of Commissioner General Sargent for the year ending June 30, 1904, was that relating to the activity of steamship agents in foreign countries and the means they used to induce foreigners to colonize in America. He says:

> In the last annual report quite an exhaustive statement was inserted of the results of an investigation in foreign countries by Inspector Braun. From that statement it appeared that Europe was covered with a perfect network of independent steamship agencies, composed in large part of persons of strong local influence in the towns and villages of their residence. These persons work as subagents of the large steamship agencies in the cities, receive a commission on the sales made, and are independent of the control of the transportation lines they so voluntarily represent, and equally beyond the reach of the law of this country. By this means violations of our laws, particularly of those that are directed against aliens under agreement to work here, continuously occur. The facts then reported have been, on a recent trip, both amplified and verified by Inspector Braun, who further submits evidence which leads to the conclusion that certain foreign countries are actively engaged in the business of inducing emigration to this country. He states also that some of the public officers of those countries admitted that such was the case. The explanation offered was that it was found expedient to colonize their subjects who come to this country, for the purpose of maintaining in them a love of their mother country.
> This was accomplished through agents of the home government and church, sent here to keep the colonists together, to keep them from imbibing a knowledge of and affection for the institutions of the United States, which might, and probably would, result in their purchase of homes here and final expatriation from their own country. That result meant a permanent loss to those countries of the allegiance and usefulness of such of their subjects as adopt our views and become American citizens, as well as loss of the enormous aggregate revenue sent back annually by those who cherish the intent of ultimately returning, buying homes and living on the proceeds of their earnings.
> Here we have, for the first time, an authoritative statement of one, at least, of the reasons for the existence of alien colonies in the United States, which the bureau has pointed out as the cause of the chief dangers to be apprehended from the enormous immigration of aliens. It is unnecessary here to repeat the bureau's views on this point, but it does not desire, nor could it have, in this connection, reason to sustain those views than Inspector Braun's report. Our interest, if not safety, lies in the gradual naturalization or Americanization of our alien population. The interest of the countries from which that population comes lies in the opposite direction. Those countries are taking measures to accomplish their ends. Shall the United States neglect what is to its interest in this respect under any circumstances, especially as artificial obstacles are now added to natural ones?

This is the whole constitution and bylaws of a club composed of business men who live in the East End suburbs, and whose places of business are down town. The club will formally organize by electing officers on Thanksgiving day.

The object of the club is to promote chivalry on crowded street cars. To this end the members may take any vacant seat while no ladies are standing, but when all the seats are filled the men on the right hand side of the car must give way to women. The men on the left hand side of the car may retain their seats, no matter how many women are standing.

INJURY TO CRANEMAN RESULTS IN HIS DEATH

Refuses to Submit to an Operation Until Too Late—Other Cases for the Coroner.

James A. Lawson, a craneman employed in the Woods Run plant of the Pressed Steel Car Company, who was injured two weeks ago, died yesterday morning at the Allegheny General hospital. His right leg was fractured in two places and on being taken to the hospital he refused to submit to an amputation. Later on the operation was found imperative, but the patient died of gangrene. He was 24 years old, married, and lived in Catherine street, McKees Rocks.

Jacob Rusbe, aged 25, and married, of 609 Reisel street, Homestead, was found dead on the tracks of the Monongahela division of the Pennsylvania railroad at Munhall at a late hour on Saturday night. His body had been mangled by a train.

Albert E. Hazelbaker of Valley street, Oakmont, a brakeman on a shifting crew on the Allegheny Valley railroad, fell from a freight car yesterday and was instantly killed. He was aged 32 and married.

The dead body of an infant, only a few days old, was found lying in the rear of the East End branch of the Young Women's Christian association building, Collins avenue, Saturday night. The little corpse was wrapped in a sheet. It was brought to the morgue. There are no marks of violence on the body.

The coroner was notified last night of the sudden death of James Anderson of 405 Walker street at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was married, 59 years old and had been ill with asthma for some time.

HONOR DEAD NOVELIST.

Thousands Line Route When Remains of Meyer Shaikewitz Are Taken to Cemetery.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Upward of 100,000 persons today lined the route of the funeral procession of Nathan Meyer Shaikewitz, the Hebrew novelist and dramatist, better known by his pen name of Schomer. He is said to have been the author of more than 300 dramas and novels.

Escorted by mounted policemen, the hearse was preceded by a chorus of 50 members of the Jewish Actors Chorus Union, chanting dirges, and was followed by several hundred members of various Hebrew societies on foot and a long line of carriages. Funeral services were held in the hall of the educational alliances, after which the body was escorted to a Brooklyn cemetery.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Moses Harris, aged 21, the son of wealthy parents, was shot and killed by Thomas Billup, one of the wealthiest men of Dry Fork, McDowell county. Billup refused to loan Harris a fine riding horse and he pulled a revolver and threatened Billup's life. Billup ran into his home and fired both barrels of a shotgun at Harris, killing him instantly. Billup rode 20 miles to the sheriff's home and surrendered.

A. P. A. AND A. O. H. MEET; LATTER GET THE HALL

Twenty Members of Protestant Association Leave the Field Peacefully When Army of 175 Irishmen Makes Its Appearance.

Fate tempted the consolidation of the A. P. A. and the Ancient Order of Hibernians in Moorehead hall last night, but idealism was, alas, once more defeated. After representatives from both sides had held a conference a treaty of peace was declared and the A. P. A. constituents left the field.

A committee from the American Protestant association had engaged the main hall for last evening for the purpose of holding a rally of members and former members of lodges 3, 5, 7, 11, 23, 35, 36, 57, 61 and 72. By some oversight Catalpa lodge of the Ancient Order of Hibernians had also procured the hall for the night.

The A. P. A. meeting was called for 7:30 o'clock and shortly after that time about 20 men gathered in peaceful conference. A few moments later the tramp, tramp, tramp of marching feet was heard on the stairway, followed by an influx of 175 Irishmen into the hall. Following in the rear came the commissary committee hauling up 10 eighths and three quarter barrels of beer, which had been procured for the occasion.

Immediately upon the arrival of the uninvited visitors the A. P. A. conferees ceased deliberations and a conference ensued. Finally the janitor was called into consultation. He could provide a small room on the lower floor, he said, and so another calamity was averted. The A. P. A. constituents surrendered and peacefully withdrew out of one door while the A. O. H. members entered the hall by another, taking full possession of the field.

TWO GAMBLERS CHEAT

ing about an hour in the basement when Mrs. Paducca left them to go to the third floor of the house, leaving a 6-months old baby in a cradle beside the gamesters. A barrel of whisky in the rear of the room enabled the men to revive their spirits for the struggle for the jackpots.

Met the Dying Man.

Shortly before 8 o'clock the occupants on the upper floors of the house heard loud words passing between Lemugelli and DeFarco. Then came the noise of overturning chairs and crashing glass. Tony Delanca and Antonio Mondanda ran to the stairway to investigate the cause of the trouble, and were met in the narrow hall by DeFarco, who stumbled up the steps and into a kitchen nearby. The entire left side of his throat was laid open and his clothing was soaked with blood.

"My God!" he exclaimed, and sank to the floor on his back, with his arms outstretched. At the same moment they heard Lemugelli dashing out of the back door of the basement and make his way through a rear gate.

While the baby in the cradle, which had been left covered with blood, was the only witness to the tragedy, the police and detectives when they arrived a few minutes later could easily read the story of the crime.

Story Was Easy to Read.

On the oilcloth covered table laid a deck of cards from which two hands had just been dealt. Where Lemugelli had been sitting lay seven cards, the highest of which was the queen of clubs. Where DeFarco sat were two aces, two eights and a "three spot." The chairs were overturned and the window panes were broken.

Detectives Riley, Demmel, McGough and Crooks arrested half a score of Italians who boarded in the house. When they arrived it was found that few of the friends of the murdered man could speak English. Among those arrested to be held as witnesses were Delanca and Mondanda. They were locked up in the Penn avenue police station.

DeFarco was 34 years of age and leaves a wife and two children in Italy. He was employed in Schoenburger's mill as a labor boss. When his effects were searched at the morgue a policy in the Pittsburgh Sick and Accident Insurance Company was found, his daughter Francesca being named as the beneficiary. His bank book showed that he had a savings account of over $200.

Razor Was Badly Dented.

The razor which had been used by Lemugelli was found in the hallway with a large dent in the blade, which had been caused by striking the victim's skull.

A description of the man was telephoned to all the police districts. At midnight Lemugelli, with bloody hands and with his clothing covered with blood, rushed into the Union station and breathlessly asked when he could get a train to Chicago. He bought a ticket for the Pennsylvania Special, when he was arrested by Special Officer Harry Owens and taken to the police station. Lemugelli confessed to the cutting and said that DeFarco had started the fray by shooting. On searching the prisoner a revolver was found.

After midnight two more women were arrested as witnesses at 1629 Penn avenue. They were Mrs. Carmello Farse and Liege Fiase. Mrs. Fiase has two small children and they were taken to No. 3 station with their mother.

The Sharpsburg quarrel began in much the same manner and at almost the same hour, and the fugitive tried to escape by boarding a Baltimore & Ohio train for Chicago. Joseph Otalitan, a boarding house boss, played a game for stakes with several fellow countrymen.

Cutting Follows Charge of Cheating.

Otalitan was accused of cheating and Bruno Carachie, in the fight which followed, stabbed him with a dagger. Carachie and Papinto Monarito, another of the fighters, fled to Pittsburgh. The weapon had penetrated Otalitan's lungs and it was stated late last night that he could not survive. He was removed to St. Francis hospital.

At 1 o'clock this morning Detectives Charles Aynier and Homer Crooks arrested Joseph Marchese, one of the men engaged in the fight at 1909 Spring alley where he was hiding. He admitted having struck several blows, but denied using any weapon.

Five other Italians were engaged in the game and a general fight ensued, during which Carachie made his escape. Officers Florence Mitchell and William Muckle arrived on the scene and captured Leo Saladino, Carl Carachie, Tony Partarte and Rock Marino, who were running from the house. They were taken to the borough lockup and will be held as witnesses.

Chief Staub went to the Baltimore & Ohio depot and found Carachie just about to leave the city in company with Monarito. Carachie and Monarito were taken back to Sharpsburg and were locked up in the borough jail about two hours after the cutting occurred. The men will receive a hearing before Justice Saint of Sharpsburg this morning.

NO FLOWERS IN CONGRESS.

Speaker Cannon Gives Notice That Floral Pieces Will Not Be Allowed in the House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—There will be no flowers in either house on the opening day of congress. Two years ago, soon after Speaker Cannon was sworn in, an attempt was made to bring in large floral pieces and place them upon the desks of members. The speaker issued positive orders to stop the proceeding and the banks of flowers remained in the lobbies until they were sent to the homes of the members. A standing resolution of the senate was adopted during the last session of congress barring flowers from the senate chamber.

Mr. Cannon has already given notice that he will not allow the flowers to be brought in as heretofore.

BURGLARS ARE CHASED.

One Enters Miss Riley's House and Another Fires at a Night Watchman.

Burglars were seen in Sharpsburg and Etna early yesterday morning. Miss Clara Riley of Washington avenue, Shaler township, was awakened by a noise. A burglar had entered through the cellar and was just about to work on the first floor. Miss Riley ran to the home of Joseph Elling and returned with him and his two brothers. They saw the burglar leaving the cellar and gave chase, but he got away.

R. Thomas Rady, nightwatchman at Tilby Brothers No. 2 glass house, met a burglar in the glass house. The man carried a sack under his arm. He struck at Rady. Rady [illegible]

CAN A CHRISTIAN BECOME?

ing school of righteousness or other high human offices? No. Do they live in sobriety, and are their wives and children radiant with the joy and approval of these husbands and fathers? No. Where, then, do they spend their lives, and how is the daily and nightly routine of their existence made up?

Make but a Sorry Sight.

"Are these not proper questions? Should we not have some ideals in our city's executive? Why, 1,100 years ago Charlemagne thought so much of his imperial induction that, when he was crowned at St. Peter's, he was also ordained as deacon. Now, do not some of the men whose names we hear in Allegheny make a sorry sight in this boastful twentieth century when we attempt to measure them with the standards of the dark long ago?

"I hear among the chorus of curses in the submerged resorts: 'A Christian mayor? Not if we can pay the price for our unbridled, merry life.' I hear in the subtle and whispered councils of heelers and the men higher up in power: 'A Christian mayor? The preachers will soon cool off; we need not fear them.' But in another place—the home of domestic gentleness and affection, I hear: 'A Christian mayor? Oh, we are tired of such talk; they will go ahead in the same old way, and after election we shall be a little worse off than we were before.'

"An accurate picture of the composite spirit of our citizenship is far from stimulating.

"If we are ever to do things for the city of our homes it is now; and from now until January; and from then to the final election day. Let us keep clear of political trimmers, and demand a voice in naming the man who shall cleanse this modern Sodom. Let him be a party man, if need be; but make him be a man of whom we shall not be ashamed. For if we, as ministers and laymen of the churches, fail of this present duty of suffrage, we are drawing our salaries under false pretenses and holding our offices in congregational boards with the impotency and negligent wickedness of some of our present municipal derelicts."

No Position for a Degenerate.

Let me go on record: The man whose moral life is not such as to commend him to the average decency of this town and time is no fit character to run for the highest office in the gift of a needful people. Make him stand out in the clear day, and let every significant fact of his life be known. We do not want, or at least we do not expect, a man of perfection; neither do we want a man who shows signs of degeneracy. We want no puppet, however straightforward he may seem to be in other things, who would turn over the city to the vulture-like gangs which are too lazy and incompetent and cowardly to go into the struggle of life, and work for a livelihood like other men. What we want, what we demand, is that the man who comes into the mayor's office shall be a man, and that every one of his cabinet members shall be a man, full of force and power.

If the political organizations are as astute as they usually are, they will vie with one another in placing before the whole people men whose probity and ability are so sure and strong that we shall have a Utopian difficulty, not of making a choice of the lesser evil among the candidates, but of finding him who is most worthy of our support.

Oh, if we will only take the proffered strength from the Father of us all, and resolve that we will make our voice heard and our wishes known, even we of poor, debauched and abused Allegheny may awake on a civic resurrection morning and see in the radiance of the dawning sun a token of the gift of God to our illumined municipal life.

FAILS TO APPEAR.

President of I. A. of M. Does Not Respond to I. W. W. Call to Debate His Statement.

The refutation of the statement made last week in the course of the A. F. of L. convention by J. J. O'Connell, president of the I. A. of M., that the Industrial Workers of the World is in the hire of capitalists for the purpose of disrupting his union, was the burden of the speeches made at a meeting of the I. W. W. yesterday afternoon at Odd Fellows' hall, South Eighteenth and Sarah streets.

J. J. O'Connell had been invited to attend the meeting and make good his statement in open debate, but he did not accept. Speeches were made by David Gilchrist, E. J. Markley of Braddock, William Adams and James A. McDonnell of Wilkinsburg. The Pittsburgh South Side Ironworkers' Industrial union, a branch of the I. W. W., was organized last night at 2109 Sarah street, with a membership of 50.

CAUSES NINETEEN DEATHS.

Football Season Makes a Gruesome Record of Dead and Maimed Participants in the Game.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(Special.)—The football season has produced more than the average number of casualties. There have been 19 deaths and 137 injuries. The injured list merely reflects the aggregate of miscellaneous accidents. A full list of players who were injured at some time during the season would sum up close to 1,000, and then would include only the injuries of a really serious character.

Of those slaughtered to make a touchdown, 11 were high school players and 10 of the killed were immature boys of 17 and under. Three hardened, seasoned and presumably physically fit college men were slain. The others were amateurs.

STEAL WATCHES AND FOB.

Men Employed to Move Household Goods Are Accused of Larceny.

Charles Wilson and G. A. Seibel of 327 Frankstown avenue were committed to jail in default of bail yesterday by Magistrate Negley on a charge of entering a building with intent to commit a felony, preferred by Mrs. William Nelson of 1379 Montezuma street.

The men were employed Saturday by Haugh & Keenan to remove a load of furniture from Mrs. Nelson's house. After they had left she missed two gold watches and a fob. When searched at the station house the watches and fob were found in Seibel's pocket.

Investigating Girl's Death.

According to a special dispatch from Zanesville, O., a post mortem examination by Coroner Mathews has disclosed that peritonitis following a criminal operation caused the death on Friday of Henrietta J. Kennedy, aged 26, said to have formerly been a resident of Pittsburgh. The dispatch says that the body was taken to Cuyahoga, Can., the former home of the girl's mother, Mrs. Rollin Dewitt of Pittsburgh for burial. Neither the name of Henrietta Kennedy nor that of Mrs. Dewitt appears in the Pittsburgh directory.

SELECT COUNCIL WILL KILL COURT APPEALS

Passage of Hamilton Avenue Repealers Today Will Stop All Legal Proceedings.

If select council today passes the repealer of the Hamilton avenue extension it will put an end to the appeals taken on Saturday by property owners from the award of damages allowed them by the city board of viewers.

The report of the board of viewers was filed on November 1 and 30 days are allowed for appeals to be taken or for the city councils to repeal the ordinance under which the award of the viewers was made and the improvement planned. The repealing ordinance has passed common councils, and if there is a quorum of the upper branch today it will probably pass there also without opposition. Both branches are called to meet today.

In common council tonight the agreement between the city and the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for the relocation of the Pittsburgh Junction tracks and Boundary street and 19 ordinances vacating streets, which belong to the general plan of the improvement, will be considered. There have been many complaints recently from councilmen of failure to receive railroad passes and there are rumors that an attempt may be made to hold up the railroad ordinances or at least to prevent the final passage of the bills until the members have had an opportunity to examine them and look over the plans.

Two electric light companies will present ordinances today asking for franchises from the city councils to operate in the city. The South Side Electric Manufacturing Company will ask for a franchise for the South Side only. The City Electric Company will apply for the right to do business in the entire city.

FOUR THOUSAND REVOLT

barracks are located, there were no disorders today and the situation is regarded as much improved.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 26.—The successful mutiny of the sailors at Sebastopol, accompanied by the first open revolt of an entire regiment of troops, has created alarm in government circles and no attempt is made to disguise the seriousness of this latest crisis. The army is the last prop of the government. Mutiny is contagious and the epidemic of revolt which has attacked in turn practically all the units of the navy from Vladivostok to Cronstadt, it is now feared is destined similarly to spread throughout the army.

WARSAW, Nov. 26.—Tonight two bombs were thrown through the windows of the cafe of the Hotel Bristol. The explosions are said to have resulted in the smashing of furniture and the slight injury of a few persons. No one was killed, though the cafe was crowded.

MOSCOW, Nov. 26.—Crowds of striking workmen, many of them armed with revolvers, continue to pillage factories and stores and the houses of the better class. In several quarters of the city numbers of persons have been wounded by shots from the crowds.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The fund for the relief of the suffering Hebrews in Russia was increased today by $50,352, making a total of $878,511 collected to date.

DR. D. A. M'CLENNAHAN SCORES CITY OFFICIALS

Condemns Wyman and Scandrett and Sharply Criticises Judge Macfarlane for Light Sentences.

The Rev. Dr. D. A. McClennahan of the Allegheny Theological seminary, yesterday morning delivered an address on graft in the First United Presbyterian church of Allegheny. He introduced his talk by a review of the work accomplished by the Federation of Churches through the district attorney's office. He said the spectacle of 43 women from the lower wards of Allegheny, standing before the court and pleading guilty to selling liquor illegally and keeping immoral resorts was never witnessed in Allegheny county prior to last Saturday. He said in part:

> The defeat of the Citizens party was probably brought about by the unsavory odor of the Wyman administration through its department of public safety, which has been shown to the public by trials for vice and graft pushed by the federation. We did not as a federation work against the Citizens party, but in our efforts to purify our city from the foul blotch of impurity fostered by the police department of the Allegheny administration, the people came to see the foulness of this department, and they voted against the party which had as its chief representative a mayor who would keep in his cabinet Thomas B. Scandrett, and in other offices men who prostituted office for the sake of graft. The federation has no quarrel with any department in the Allegheny administration, except the department of public safety, with Thomas B. Scandrett as its head, and with James G. Wyman who kept him there, and the delinquent tax office that should have been abolished according to pre-election pledges.
> Wyman, Scandrett and Wilson dragged the Citizens party to defeat. We must have a mayor who believes in purity. This necessity is all the more apparent because of the course taken by Judge Macfarlane in imposing sentence on these women who were self-confessed violators of the liquor laws. Had he postponed sentence pending good behavior, not one of the 43 would have gone on with her business. Then, if the same course should be taken with 100 yet to come up for sentence, Allegheny would be practically rid of these houses. Judge Macfarlane had it within his power to make Allegheny a clean city. Yet he let these women off with such light fines that payment will be no punishment. Judge Macfarlane said not a word to these women about quitting the business. Notwithstanding this judicial decision, the federation purposes to keep right on with its work until Allegheny is purged of vice and gambling.

WOMEN SMASH WINDOWS AND LAND IN PRISON

Ida Hunter of James street and Ida Gordon of Irwin avenue, Allegheny, both colored, were given hearings at the North Side Central station yesterday morning. Miss Hunter was given 30 days to the county jail in default of a fine of $10 and costs for throwing bricks through the windows of the houses of Malissa Finney and Martin Spindler in Shields street. Ida Gordon worked for a few weeks for Samuel McElroy, president of Allegheny common council, at his home at 1611 Fremont street. Mr. McElroy's son, Edward McElroy, testified he went home Saturday and found the prisoner in the vestibule under the influence of drink and using bad language. He says he ordered her to leave the place and she smashed the glass in the vestibule door with her fist. She was fined $25 and costs or 30 days to jail.

WILL SHIP EQUIPMENT FROM PITTSBURGH SHOPS

Material to Carry Out Mexican Oil Contract Secured in This City.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Huge quantities of structural material, machinery and other equipment will be shipped from the Pittsburgh district to Mexico in order to permit the Mexican Petroleum Company, in which prominent Pittsburghers are primarily interested, to carry out a $25,000,000 contract for the supply of Mexican oil for use on the Mexican Central railroad.

The carrying out of this record-breaking contract is expected to entail the furnishing of about $5,000,000 barrels of oil. The contract is to run for 15 years. The contract price is 60 cents a barrel. The oil company undertakes to effect a saving to the railroad company of at least 20 per cent by the use of oil instead of coal.

The Mexican Petroleum Company will supply the oil from its Ebano property, which covers almost half a million acres in the states of Vera Cruz, Tampaulipes and San Luis Potosi. Among the Pittsburghers interested in the Mexican Petroleum Company are John Eaton, president of the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce, and W. Harry Brown. Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia and the Hon. Henry G. Davis are also concerned in the enterprise.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., chartered accountants of Great Britain, and Messrs. Haskins and Sells, certified public accountants of New York state, have jointly made an examination of the affairs of the Equitable Life Assurance society of the United States and certify to the following statement as of September 30, 1905:

"The assets of the society as claimed, are all found to be on hand, and in value amount to $415,186,500 10. The surplus over and above all liabilities amounts to $67,142,865 42.

"The reduction in assets is brought about entirely by a conservative revaluation, most of which is in real estate and in shares owned by the society in certain financial institutions."

Dizzy Spells

That dizzy spell is an important message from the heart—a plea for help.

If this message receives no attention others come: shortness of breath, palpitation, weak or fainting spells, smothering or choking sensations, pains around the heart, in side or shoulders, and so on, until it receives the necessary help, or is compelled to give up—stop. You may furnish this aid with which cures heart disease in every stage.

Every day we read of sudden deaths from heart disease, yet it is a fact that the heart had been pleading for help, and gave up the struggle only when it had exhausted the last spark of vitality.

"I was taken down with heart trouble and dropsy, and my family doctor said there was no chance for me. I sat up three months to keep from smothering. A trial bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure helped me, and I got 6 bottles, which entirely cured me."

MAKES DONATION OF EVEN $25,000

Former Congressman Porter Gives Large Sum to Baptist Foreign Mission Work.

UNION SERVICES ARE HELD

Former Congressman H. Kirke Porter has made a donation of $25,000 to the endowment fund of $500,000 being raised for higher educational work in foreign lands by the Baptist Missionary union. This announcement was made last evening in the Fourth Avenue Baptist church, where 1,200 persons attended a union service in which the congregations of the Fourth avenue, Shady avenue, Union, Sandusky street, Johnson avenue and Lawrence avenue churches participated.

The speakers were the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Mabie of Boston, home secretary of the Missionary union, and the Rev. Dr. William Ashmore, the nestor of missionaries to Chinese. Dr. Mabie is raising money for the endowment fund for which $100,000 has already been secured. Mr. Porter made his $25,000 donation since Mr. Mabie has been in Pittsburgh.

Dr. Mabie spoke on the "Missionary Significance of the Portsmouth Treaty," while Dr. Ashmore took for his subject "The Missionary Situation in China," a theme on which his 55 years of residence in China peculiarly fitted him to speak.

Because Japan, although a heathen nation, had the moral courage to forego all claim for indemnity in the settlement with Russia, Dr. Mabie held that that country has been brought to peculiar maturity of national life and from its commanding natural position, near China, will have in the future a high moral, commercial and social influence on matters in the Celestial empire. The development of Count Sergius Witte, the Russian envoy to the conference, who has since been placed in charge of public affairs in Russia, was also considered an excellent result of the treaty. The few weeks' stay of the premier in the United States, Dr. Mabie said, opened the eyes of the visitor to modern conditions and will peculiarly fit him to handle the tremendous problem which Russia now faces. Dr. Mabie paid a marked tribute to President Roosevelt for his work in bringing about the peace.

Dr. Ashmore, aged 82, but hale and vigorous and of commanding presence followed Dr. Mabie. He said he saw the hand of God in the Russo-Japanese war, not because the Japanese are Christians, but because they have shown a high sense of moral obligation. Dr. Ashmore reviewed the history of mission work in China, telling of the introduction of the Roman Catholic religion there about 400 years ago, and the beginning of the work by Protestants a little over 100 years ago. The fact that the Jesuits did not use the Bible in their work among the natives was held by him as unfortunate. He said that since the coming of the Protestant workers into the field over 120,000 converts had been made. There are at present, he said, only 2,900 missionaries in China to work among the 400,000,000 population. He spoke of the great work being accomplished by the missionaries and he is extremely optimistic regarding the evangelization, not only of China, but of all nations.

Dr. Mabie, Dr. Ashmore and S. C. Woodward of Washington, D. C., will be the principal speakers at the banquet and reception to be held tonight by the Baptist Social union at the Hotel Schenley.

PUDDLE OF CRUDE OIL WRECKS AUTOMOBILE

Aged Couple and Their Little Granddaughter Thrown Out and Badly Hurt.

Three persons were hurt in an automobile accident, caused by crude oil, in Ridge avenue, near Marion avenue, Allegheny, at 3:30 p. m. yesterday. The injured are:

MRS. A. GILLILAND, aged 58, of Riverview avenue, Bellevue; right shoulder dislocated and arms and face cut and bruised; taken to the Allegheny General hospital, where her injuries were dressed and then removed to her home in a carriage.

A. GILLILAND, aged 61; cut and bruised about the body and legs and suffering from the jar received in falling from the automobile. He was also taken to the hospital with his wife.

MARY, age 2, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilliland, cut and bruised about the face and hands; taken to the hospital with her grandparents; injuries slight.

Mr. Gilliland and his wife and granddaughter were in Mr. Gilliland's new machine, a two-seated car. Mr. Gilliland was driving and his wife and granddaughter were in the rear seat. They drove across the Stockton avenue drive in West Park and were going up the sharp grade on Ridge avenue to the bridge over the Ft. Wayne tracks when the wheels of the automobile ran into a lot of crude oil spilled on the street. The machine slid to the right and the right front wheel struck the six-inch gas main which crosses the bridge at grade. The wheel was smashed, as was the front of the car. Before Mr. Gilliland could shut off the power the machine slid along the gas main to the center of the bridge and then shot to the center of the driveway and stopped so abruptly that all three occupants of the car were thrown out head first, alighting in an inch or so of black stiff mud which had collected on the bridge. The mud saved Mr. Gilliland and the granddaughter from serious injury, but Mrs. Gilliland fell on her shoulder and it was dislocated.

TOO MUCH IMMIGRATION.

United Labor League Wants Congress to Pass Laws Stopping It.

The United Labor league last night adopted resolutions asking congress for legislation prohibiting undesirable immigration for 10 years. They recite that thousands of immigrants, ignorant of American institutions and alien in language and customs, thus menacing the government and institutions, are daily landing in America, and maintain that such immigration should be stopped in the interest of the country, our homes and posterity, and the welfare of the republic.

Copies of the resolutions are to be forwarded to the two United States senators and the four congressmen from Allegheny county.

AUTOPSY IS HELD ON BRANCH'S BODY

Midshipman's Remains Are Disinterred and Examined by the Surgeons at Annapolis.

BOARD'S FINDINGS ARE SECRET

ANNAPOLIS, MD., Nov. 26.—The body of Midshipman James R. Branch, Jr., who died November 7 after a fist fight with Midshipman Minor Meriwether, whose trial by court-martial on charges that include manslaughter will be continued tomorrow, was disinterred today and an autopsy was held by a board of naval medical officers, pursuant to orders of the secretary of the navy. The condition of the body was found to be such that those who made the autopsy will be able to answer questions that have arisen during the Meriwether trial as to the condition of Midshipman Branch's heart and other organs prior to the fight.

The board performing the autopsy was composed of Surgeon J. C. Byrnes, the ranking medical officer attached to the naval academy, and Passed Assistant Surgeons W. R. Webb and R. E. Hoyt, also of the naval academy staff. As requested by counsel for Midshipman Meriwether, Medical Director Howard Eames, fleet surgeon of the North Atlantic fleet, and Surgeon E. D. Gatewood were present, as was also Dr. L. W. Glaszebock, an expert in medical testimony, who has acted officially in autopsies held in Washington, D. C., for some years. All those taking part in the autopsy were bound to secrecy as to their discoveries until their evidence is given before the court-martial. Surgeon J. C. Byrnes, ranking officer of the autopsy board, however, made the statement that "the body was in condition to furnish such evidence as was desired."

The autopsy was conducted in a tent erected in the naval cemetery near the grave of young Branch, but some of the organs were taken to the naval hospital for more minute examination. The work of the medical men lasted until late this afternoon, and at its conclusion the body was reinterred. Marines were on guard to keep from the vicinity all but those officially connected with the autopsy.

That today's examination was not made at the time of Branch's death was due to the objections of his parents. Meriwether's counsel, however, have indicated that one of their lines of defense will rest upon a possible doubt as to Branch's death having resulted from injuries received in the fight with Meriwether. They have questioned witnesses as to other possible causes induced by organic weakness, and it was for the purpose of determining whether such weakness existed in Branch previous to the fight that the autopsy was held.

OBJECT TO VACCINATION.

Deacon Declares That It Is an Attempt to Interfere With Acts of Providence.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—The question of vaccination has caused trouble in the schools of Perry township, Lawrence county, a few miles northeast of here. When David Jones, who was elected township principal last fall, opened the winter term he insisted that each pupil show a vaccination certificate. His demand met violent opposition from parents. The case was referred to the school directors and that body sided with the parents.

The principal was firm in his determination to comply with the law regarding vaccination and he was dismissed by the board. Some of the parents objected to vaccination on moral grounds, declaring that it is an attempt to interfere with Providence. At a meeting of citizens one deacon said: "It's just this way—If the Lord wills a child to have smallpox, that child will have smallpox, even if he is vaccinated from head to foot."

SHOOT AND ROB PEDDLERS.

Italian Laborers Hold Up Four Men and Two Are Probably Fatally Wounded.

LANCASTER, PA., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Four peddlers visited several Italian camps in the vicinity of Creswell today and after finishing their day's business started across the country toward Safe Harbor. They were held up by the Italians, who demanded their money at the point of revolvers. The peddlers resisted and the highwaymen opened fire, shooting two of the peddlers in the head and body. The wounded men were then relieved of $600 in cash and their assailants escaped.

The two men who escaped the Italians' bullets notified the authorities at Safe Harbor and word was sent to police headquarters here and two of the Italians were captured. The hold-up was the boldest of the numerous outrages committed in that section since the new railroad work was opened up. The wounded men were removed to the Columbia hospital and will probably die.

Both the automobile and football figured in the fatality columns of yesterday's papers. A few deaths will not stop either, else they had been discontinued long ago. There is a certain vogue for strenuous "amusement" that must be catered to in some way. Yet signs are not wanting of the spirit of reform in football and in automobiling and there is some disposition to aid both by legal enactments.

When it was announced to the congregation of the Eleventh United Presbyterian church that three gentlemen had agreed to give a site for a new church if $15,000 was raised, the amount was subscribed in 15 minutes. Church subscriptions at the rate of $1,000 a minute are significant of religious fervor and of prosperity. Both abound in this community and will lend zest to the observances on Thursday next.

Rabbi J. Leonard Levy stated accurately the part played by Jews in the discovery of America, in the course of his address yesterday. He had not time to even sketch the part played by his race in the development of this country. Since the landing of the first colony, 250 years ago, the Jewish people in America have borne their share of the burdens and contributed their share of the energy needed to make this country what it is, and they have done it cheerfully.

London county council refuses to lift the embargo against skyscrapers in the metropolis. Some will denounce this as fogyism and some will call it British conservatism. Call it anything, it can hardly be justified. London is now so diffused over space that transit is one of its most serious problems. It is crowded, in every sense of the term. The skyscraper construction would have the virtue of making more room upward, at least, and its success in America leaves little foundation for the British prejudice.

There is some food for thought in the sermon of the Rev. Mr. Dieffenbach, touching the mayoralty in Allegheny. Some there be who do not want a Christian mayor, preferring "Sunday beer." The Gazette, however, takes a more hopeful view of the situation than the clergyman. Allegheny ought to be ready for an administration free from graft, that will enforce the laws as they are found in the books. The laws are plentiful. The Gazette believes Allegheny is at the turning in the lane and will take the right course.

Director Bigelow's resolve to resist the importunities of his friends and not become a candidate for mayor, might be considered from several points of view. There will probably be no general disappointment. Some persons will regret the loss of a possible opportunity to express their opinions of the director's political and official actions, but they may be easily consoled. Then again, many will be apt to regard mention of the director, in this connection, as a suggestion of all the people do not desire to have embodied in the candidates.

One million women have signed the petitions praying that Reed B. Smoot, apostle of the Mormon church, be ousted from his seat in the United States senate. There is no element of religious bigotry in this protest; it is aimed solely at one Mormon institution, polygamy. Mr. Smoot is not a polygamist; he has disclaimed preference for the institution; but the public mind cannot free itself from the belief that Mormonism and polygamy are inseparable, or that a Mormon apostle can give first allegiance to the government if in conflict with the purposes of his church. Reed Smoot must go.

Controller Larkin's collection of statistics of the cost of street lighting in other municipalities makes a valuable contribution to discussion of the Pittsburgh service. No other place on the list pays as much as Pittsburgh for arc lights, though no other is blessed with cheaper fuel. The average of all the prices tabulated is $67.50 for each are light. On the showing made by the suit to enforce a contract at 3 cents a kilowatt for current, this average price affords a large margin of profit. Yet Pittsburgh has been paying more than $20 a year above that average price and would have been bound by a four-year contract had there not been active interference with the plans of the administration.

Dam the Turbid Stream.

The greatest needs of the United States today are restriction of immigration and higher qualifications for exercise of the elective franchise. These are more important than regulation of railroad rates, or the irrigation of arid lands, laudable as the latter are. The former are essential to maintenance of the standard of American citizenship; doubly essential to its improvement.

How much of the tendency to "graft" so generally discussed recently is due to the enormous influx of ignorant aliens; how much election corruption has its roots in illy-prepared citizenship cannot be stated exactly. Certain it is both are greatly augmented by the freedom of immigration and the laxity of naturalization laws. Despite all regulations to safeguard them, low-grade immigrants become easy prey for petty grafters almost from the moment of landing; the same tribe soon becomes the stock in trade of the rascally politician because admitted to full citizenship before there is a beginning of appreciation of the royal privilege of participating in government.

As congress will be compelled to give some attention to continued exclusion of Chinese coolies, its members ought to be moved to give serious thought to the exclusion of worse than coolies from other lands. While New York city is busy with an election contest and Pennsylvania is preparing to provide for personal registration of voters in cities the whole people should realize the necessity for amendment of the naturalization laws. There are positive evils, menacing the body politic, to be cured along these lines.

Unless prompt measures are taken to check the contaminating flood the state will suffer. Already American institutions have been degraded. Hourly the country is exposed to danger. Popular sovereignty is losing its significance. The stream of statesmanship is growing turbid. Every consideration of political morality; every hope for the future of the republic demands a closing of the gates.

It is true the Pilgrim Fathers were aliens when they landed at Plymouth Rock; the Quakers were aliens when they arrived on the banks of the Delaware; the Dutch were aliens when they founded New Amsterdam alongside of New England. We are all of alien origin, near or remote, but this is not a tenable argument for leaving the doors wide open for any alien who can be induced by an active steamship agent to take cheap passage for our shores.

We can afford, even yet, to welcome pioneers with the heart and will to conquer a wilderness, though we no longer need them. We cannot afford to welcome the weaklings and vicious from foreign slums who come merely to further choke our avenues of strangulation. We may welcome oppressed, liberty-loving spirits from every clime, but not the world's miserables whose only ambition is to exist amid degraded surroundings. Above all we cannot afford to surrender to these spiritless mercenaries the priceless boon of the ballot they know not how to use.

These people are not needed for the orderly development of the country; they are desired only by those who would exploit them in the mad race for quick riches. Their ignorance and habitual poverty make them easy victims of the rapacious, but when their eyes begin to open they are filled with unreasoning hatred for the order of things. It requires 21 years to make a good native voter; 10 years is not too much time for the making of a good citizen from raw foreign material. Assuredly the privilege of voting in six months, or a year, as in some of the states, is holding the franchise too cheaply. More important than mere time, however, is understanding. No man should be allowed to vote anywhere until he knows the purpose of government and appreciates the duty of citizenship. No alien should be naturalized until he understands the language of the country, is conversant with its political system and can give reasonable proof his ballot is not to be delivered at the word of command, or sold for either dollars or drink.

It is time to check the immigration of undesirable persons; it is even more urgent to increase the requirements for naturalization.

Old Question in Court.

The determination of the Virginia debt commission to enter suit against the state of West Virginia for the latter's alleged proportionate share of the debt of the old state before the severance took place, promises final settlement of that question. The assertion emanating from Richmond that West Virginia has ignored her responsibility is not true. More than 20 years ago a commission was sent to Richmond where it met a like body representing the mother state, but no agreement was reached, Virginia contending for $15,000,000, as the share of West Virginia. Virginia issued certificates for this amount. They were bought up at nominal price by speculators, who, so far, have realized nothing on them. The pressure brought by the holders of these securities for payment has driven the debt commission to take the matter into court.

West Virginia is not a state to repudiate her just obligations. Democratic and Republican governors in their messages to the legislature referring to this subject have always declared West Virginia stood ready at any time to pay her "just proportion" of the debt of the old state. Gov. Atkinson in his last message claimed a fair accounting would show West Virginia was not indebted to the "Old Dominion" one cent. This statement was based on the old contention that taxes paid into the state treasury by the western part of the state, now West Virginia, were spent almost entirely for internal improvements on the other side of the Blue Ridge mountains.

It is an old quarrel, under a new name. Long before the war the question of the separation of western from eastern Virginia was agitated. The interests of the sections were markedly opposite, and there was no bond of sympathy between them. The outbreak of the war gave the people of western Virginia their opportunity, and they were not slow in slipping from under the yoke of the old state. The separation left the two states quarreling over the debt question which is finally to be aired in the courts. It promises to assume proportions of national interest, and may involve some of the features of the old doctrine of state's rights.

Russia's Tragedy.

In one aspect, at least, the mutiny at Sebastopol is the most serious of all the revolutionary manifestations in Russia. For the first time an entire army regiment is in revolt, having joined the naval force at that point. The mutiny in the navy on the Black sea is complete. Up to latest advices the revolt has not been characterized by violent excesses, soldiers, sailors and workmen being content to expend their energies chiefly in marching with the red flag. There is, however, great apprehension among the people.

Count Witte's cabinet is in special session considering the situation, but has reached no definite conclusions. There are rumors in St. Petersburg of a dictatorship and a resort to force, because the leniency shown appears to have inflated the demands of the revolutionaries. Witte is loath to adopt this course, feeling it will lead to worse scenes of carnage than have yet been dreamed of and probably back to extreme despotism, if successful. If not successful such resort would lead certainly to complete anarchy.

Count Witte must begin to fear his elevation to the premiership is merely the prelude to his destruction. He and his measures are obnoxious to the reactionaries, who have encouraged the massacres of the Jews and the riots, in order that these should be accredited as the fruits of liberty. On the other hand Witte does not enjoy the confidence of the Liberals and he has no influence with the "reds." Constitutional freedom and material progress are within the grasp of the Russian people, but in their ignorance, cultivated in the interest of prolonging the despotism, they seem unable to realize the fact, or to restrain themselves. They persist, instead, in enacting a great national tragedy.

Half Way Gallant.

Chivalry is not dead. Evidence is afforded by the organization of a club, the male members of which are pledged to give up seats on the right hand side of the car when ladies stand. So far as learned there is no rule of the club that requires members to preempt vacant seats on the right side to give opportunity for the display of polite gallantry, or to prevent them showing a preference for the left. Even so, the idea is worth something in view of the chronic shortage of cars and the threat of a new "holding" corporation.

"Women to the right; men to the left," is the reported motto of the society. There is something suggestive in it; a naive tribute to the sex that is always to the right. To be sure the "left" is not synonymous with the "wrong," in the matter of surrendering car seats to the ladies it is to be right and yet to be left—standing most likely.

This society ought soon to have a large membership. It may improve its rules. At the least the members may become so accustomed to surrendering seats on the right they may occasionally do so on the left side of the car. And finally when the organization has grown to be a huge club it may be so wielded as to secure better service, or to knock out the multiplying holding corporations, so called because they are water-tight and filled to the brim.

A railroad engineer is permitted to take a 40-mile-an-hour run after five years of preparation. An automobile chauffeur can do it whenever he is foolish enough.

An Altoona blacksmith has sent a horseshoe to the czar of Russia. It may be hoped the charm will be more potent than that of the ikons.

Abdul Hamid is in a fair way to learn to discriminate between the distinguished friendship of the German emperor and his active support.

The Pilgrim Fathers who came as aliens did not ask for the elective franchise until after their children grew up.

There is no apparent diminution in the dangers of the automobile to those who ride or to those who walk.

Premier Balfour is accused of dodging the question when, apparently, he does not know his own mind.

King Menelik's emissary would get on faster if he could exchange a part of his name for an interpreter.

Justice for the subjects of the sultan is desirable though Turkish massacres are no worse than Russian.

In the scramble for Senator Burton's shoes Kansas threatens to make another exhibition of itself.

A million women are after Reed Smoot's scalp. This beats an ordinary Mormon plurality.

Pretty nearly everybody in Russia has mutinied, or rioted, except Nicholas and Witte.

The opinion grows that Annapolis cannot afford both football and the "code."

QUIET OBSERVATIONS ON WAYS OF WORLD

What's the Matter With Country-Bred Men and Women?

By ERASMUS WILSON.

True worth is in being, not seeming,
In doing, each day that goes by.
Some little good, not in dreaming
Of great things to do by and bye.
For whatever men say in their blindness,
And in spite of the fancies of youth,
There's nothing so kindly as kindness,
And nothing so royal as truth.
—Alice Cary

Country-bred men and women are different in some respects from those bred and born in cities, yet they are men and women, all the same.

Boys and girls reared in the country are brought up to work, and for that reason their hands are large and strong, so that they cannot wear small-sized gloves and rings. Some of them try to squeeze their large, well-developed hands into small gloves. When they succeed without bursting the gloves their hands are about the shape of liver pads.

The more sensible among them, which is the majority, wear gloves that fit their hands, and shoes that fit their feet, and are content to let city folks laugh, if they must.

In matters of morals, industry, and temperance, country-bred men and women do not play second-fiddle to their city cousins. Nor do they take back seats in the halls of knowledge, or temples of wisdom, but they do yield precedence in the processions of fashion, folly and freakiness.

And it so happens that country-bred men and women have helped to make cities great by their industry, honesty and enterprise. A majority of the successful business men in our cities were country-bred.

It hath been said of old time that God made the country and man made the town.

Mr. Quiet Observer:—I expected, after carefully reading the article printed in the "Quiet Observation" column on the subject, "Can a city-bred young lady be happy when married to a country-bred young man?" to find some such name as Maudde, Carrye or Elyzabetthe signed thereto, and I was not disappointed, for there was "Edythe," of Ford City, in all her glory.

Why is it the young ladies will persist in spelling good Christian names in such a ridiculous fashion, and is it not unlikely that it would be this particular type of a girl that would quote from a favorite author or make use of a philosophical rule when conversing with her country-bred husband after dinner on a long wintry evening?

Would it not be much better if our dear American girls would marry the seemingly much despised country-bred man than to scrape the wide, wide world for a titled foreigner, whose only interest would be in the amount contributed by the "old man?" A. E. H.

Carnegie, Pa.

The great trouble with young women, and with young men as well, is that they look more to style, dress and manners than to real worth when seeking life partners.

When a young woman asks what is he worth, she refers to his bank account and not to his worth as a man.

And surprising as it may seem, ambitious young men will search high and low far and wide, for a rich father-in-law, when what they most need is a wife richly endowed with common sense.

Money is the poorest sort of endowment for a young man who hopes to make a creditable mark in the world.

There are city girls who turn up their noses at country-bred men. Let them do so, and do it so that all may see them. These will not make good wives for anybody, because they are all for style.

The man who marries a woman because she is fit to become a good wife, a sure enough helpmate, is the lucky fellow after all, even if there is no ready money in the transaction.

Mr. Quiet Observer:—The Gazette never speaks but it says something. This time it is (thanks to its good, hard, common sense), the much-abused toothpick. I have seen necessary toilet appurtenances misused, but never anything approaching the misuse of the toothpick have I seen. I have been dismayed and disgusted at the flourish and display with which this sometimes necessary article was accompanied.

It seems to me that the most common politeness would suggest to the user of a toothpick that only in the strict privacy of his toilet room, or in a "lodge in some vast wilderness," should he indulge this propensity for the toothpick.

I shall not descant further on this subject, for there are so many who have witnessed the fearful and wonderful gyrations of a toothpick fiend, and the astounding length of time he consumes in the operation, that it would be superfluous. "MILLY."

Wellsburg, W. Va.

Gee! And from West Virginia!

Would "Milly" have us use a fork, or pick our teeth with our fingers?

Possibly she has seen some awakward fellow picking his teeth with a fork, or with a goosequill, or chicken bone pick that he has been using for months, or maybe for years.

New Yorkers pick their teeth at the table, and Londoners suck soup so boisterously that any one in a dining-room can hear. So, what are we to do, or to whom shall we look for correct examples?

"Milly" should not have stopped at finding fault with the toothpick habit, but told us what and how to do when our teeth get all clogged up with stuff.

No doubt but some have the toothpick habit so badly that they are continually obtruding it upon the notice of those who have teeth that don't need picking.

As between soup sucking and teeth picking the latter is far more endurable.

Good teeth don't need picking, for they are self-cleaning, being so arranged and so adapted to the mouth that food can neither get between them nor stick to them. It is only when teeth are badly arranged, or become diseased, that they require either pick or brush.

The toothpick can be abused, but it is not abused as badly as the brush, nor is it nearly as harmful. The toothbrush has made a whole lot more work for dentists than has the toothpick.

It is true that even such a small affair as a splint toothpick can become legitimately offensive, and even disgustingly so, but that does not argue in favor of its being totally prohibited.

Children should be taught how to care for their teeth, including the proper use of toothpick and brush. Unfortunately our up-to-date schools have no time for practical lessons.

Etiquette of Cannibalism.

"Even among the savages of French Africa, who eat human flesh, there are differences," said Paul Pucci, a young Italian traveler. "Some while ago, when exploring that country, I learned a good bit about the ways of the various tribes. In a majority of them cannibalism is indulged only when the bodies are those of prisoners taken in battle. It is all right to eat persons who belong to hostile clans, but it would be a gross violation of tradition and the custom of the land to feast upon friends or even upon members of the same tribe. This delicacy of sentiment, however, is not universal, and in one tribe in particular, where I noted the absence of any old persons, I learned that it was the proper thing to add the aged inhabitants to the local food supply. This confined the population to the young and hardy, for at the first signs of decrepitude the boiling pot was called into requisition."—Washington Post.

BREAKERS AHEAD FOR NEW THEATER

Association That Aims to Uplift Drama Is Throwing Stones at Herr Conreid's Project.

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The National Art Theater society has started to throw stones at the so-called National theater which is to be built under the management of Herr Conried, who already presides over the destinies of the Metropolitan opera house and Irving Place theaters. It would seem that Herr Conried were a very busy man already, but it is always the busy man who can find time to do something more, if necessity or inclination demands it. It isn't because Herr Conried is the chief spirit in the new "National theater" that the Art Theater society objects, but because their ideas of what the national theater should be are entirely ignored. The matter was taken up at a meeting of the society during the past week, and later a statement was issued, in which the errors of Herr Conried and the wealthy men who are backing him were pointed out.

The National Art Theater society has been working for three years or more toward a national theater that would prove a great uplifting force for the drama. Meetings have been held regularly and the matter talked over in all its phases. All the society needed was money and this has not been forthcoming in great green rolls. True a well known actress announced that she had made a will leaving $100,000 to the society, but the actress in question is still living and there is a fear that she may strike a bad season and not have the $100,000 when the time comes for her executors to hand over the amount. There are others who have said what they would do if they had the money, but this is as uncertain as the other—and the society cannot build theaters on such prospects.

Society Far from Modest.

The statement issued by the Art Theater society declares that not $3,000,000—as provided in the plans of Herr Conried—but $5,000,000 is the sum needed for a national theater such as will fill a long felt want. Such a theater should be educational, and, to quote from the statement, "be devoted to the national art of the theater, on very definite, clear and broad lines, national in every respect and artistic in the highest degree." Some of the integral parts of a real national theater must be "a conservatory of acting and the theater arts, presided over by experienced masters of the profession, the necessary class rooms, an assembly hall and a miniature theater; a great dramatic library and a home or office for the National Art Theater society." These are some of the ideas of the society and they will continue to work on these lines until they get what they want—or their enthusiasm runs low.

Prominent People in Society.

The Art Theater society's membership roll carries some of the most prominent names in the literary and dramatic circles of the country. Then there are a few scores of the natural "woman-joiner," who has a mania for clubs of every description, but does not know much about the aims of the society. Several theatrical managers are also members of the society, evidently considering that the organization can do no harm, and may in the dim distant future do some good. At any rate, it is a good thing for a theatrical manager's name to appear in the roster of such an organization in these days when we are always accusing them of being wholly mercenary. They are also given the advantage of expending their ideals regarding the theater at the society's meetings where it cannot cost them a cent, and is only talk anyhow.

Object to Comic Opera.

The National Art Theater society is for the "drammer" first, last and all the time, and finds great room for criticism in the fact that Herr Conried and his co-workers expect to put a little spice in the way of good comic opera in their "National theater." The society points out the fact that there is no educational value in comic opera, it simply aims to be amusing—and sometimes fails even in that. In fact, the society declares that the project is sailing under false colors when it is announced as a national theater. "No collection of European classics in the repertoire will entitle it to that distinction," says the statement. "Holding open its stage doors to foreign actors, however good, is not by way of proving its title to the word national. A frosty and occasional welcome to the American playrights seems the only trace of concession to the term."

Society Will Look Into It.

The organization is going to look into the matter and see if its name can be stolen without redress. A committee has been appointed to call upon Herr Conried and tell him a few things about the meaning of the word "national." The committee will also try to convince Herr Conried and his associates that they have a great opportunity to "compass a great patriotic work and render an enormous service to American dramatic art" if they only listen to words of wisdom. In case they refuse to listen, the society proposes to "resume its march to the assured goal along its own road, recognizing Conried's enterprise as a by-product of its campaign, but distinctly declining to regard it as otherwise than a sectional and restricted private enterprise for personal profit, not in anything entitled to be called 'national.'"

Common Bond of Sympathy.

The cooks in St. Petersburg and Moscow have joined in the general strike, and now if the householders in Russia want any sympathy from those in this country, they'll have no trouble getting it. It's the one touch of ill nature, in fact, that makes the whole world kin.—Baltimore American.

SOME GOOD STORIES OF PITH AND MOMENT

Gossipy Chat and Anecdote of Entertaining and Instructive Character.

Chief Justice Fuller of the United States supreme court was mistaken for an itinerant German musician at the Savoy hotel, London, recently, and given a poor room on this account. Fuller, accompanied by his daughter, arrived at the Savoy, where the clerk, after looking them, looked the justice over from head to foot, and came to the conclusion that a man so diminutive in size and with such long hair could be but one thing—a German musician; so he gave the justice and his daughter the poorest rooms he had vacant. When later he learned who the distinguished guest was he was profuse in his attempts to apologize.—Cleveland Leader.

A Remarkable Career.

Regarded merely from the viewpoint of an artist, as the most beautiful woman on the operatic stage, Lina Cavalieri, one of the three great European songbirds whose engagement here Herr Conried announces is bound, lovers of grand opera say, to attract unusual attention. But when, in addition to her extraordinary beauty, the details of her romantic career are learned, she will, it is said, undoubtedly arouse more interest than any theatrical star who has been seen in this country.

The daughter of a scrubwoman, the once insignificant little girl whose face literally was her fortune now counts among her friends princes of Russia, close relatives of the czar, and noblemen by the score. She has been the cause of a duel in the dark between two Americans, in which most startling methods were followed, and has been the heroine of numberless episodes.—New York American.

Proved by Pat.

Among the hills of Sligo there is a small lake renowned in that region for its fabulous depth. A well-known professor, who was in that part of Ireland this summer, started one day for a mountain, accompanied by a native guide. As they climbed Pat asked him if he would like to see the lake, "for it's no bottom at all, sorr."

"How do you know that, Pat?" asked the professor.

"Well, sorr, I'll tell ye. Me own cousin was showin' the pond to a gentleman one day, sorr, and he looked incredulous like, just as you do, and me cousin couldn't stand it for him to doubt his word, sorr, and so he said: 'I'll prove the truth of me words,' he said, and off went his clothes and into the water he jumped."

The professor's face wore an amused and quizzical expression. "Yes, sorr, in he jumped, and didn't come up again, at all, at all."

"But," said the professor, "I don't see that he proved the point by drowning himself."

"Is it drowned? Devil a bit drowned at all he was. Sure, didn't a cable come from him next day in America, askin' for his clothes to be sent on!"—Liverpool Post.

His Reign.

When President Hadley succeeded the learned and witty Timothy Dwight as president of Yale university, the exercises attendant upon the transfer of authority were marred by a heavy fall of rain. It came down suddenly just as a column of people, President Dwight and Prof. Hadley at the head, were crossing the campus. Someone handed the couple an umbrella, and Prof. Hadley was about to open it when the older man took it from him, saying as he unfolded it:

"Let me carry it, professor. Your reign will begin tomorrow."—New York Times.

"Thar or Tharabouts."

Two colored preachers were in a pulpit in a southern town. One, who was preaching, happened to say, "When Abraham built the ark." The other strove to correct him by saying, "Abraham warn't thar." But the speaker pushed on, heedless of the interruption, and took occasion to repeat, still more decidedly, "I say when Abraham built the ark."

"And I say," cried out the other, "Abraham warn't thar."

"Well, I bet," said the other, with indignation, "he was thar, or tharabouts."—New York Tribune.

An Extraordinary Man.

An extraordinary man is Galen Clark, the discoverer of the Mariposa grove of big trees, who was suffering from threatened consumption in San Francisco in 1853 and sent to the Sierra by a physician, where he went bareheaded and drank only water for more than 30 years, and who, during the past three weeks, at the age of 91, has visited the General Grant grove and Sequoia grove in Frisco and Tulare counties, riding 294 miles in stage coaches, 49 in the saddle, and one day walking 12 miles, returning to the Yosemite valley last week, none the worse from his "pasear."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The One Honest Man.

A preacher at the conclusion of one of his sermons said: "Let all in the house who are paying their debts stand up." Instantly every man, woman and child with one exception rose to their feet. The preacher seated them all and said: "Now every man not paying his debts stand up." The exception noted, a careworn, hungry-looking individual, clothed in a last year's summer suit, slowly assumed a perpendicular position. "How is it my friend," asked the minister, "that you are the only man not to meet his obligations?" "I run a newspaper," he meekly answered, "and the brethren who stood up are my subscribers, and—" "Let us pray," exclaimed the minister.—Kansas City Journal.

STORIES FOUND IN THE LOBBIES

Interesting Happenings Concerning the People Who Are Traveling.

Ted Sloan, the famous jockey, is a guest at the Hotel Lincoln. He arrived in the city yesterday with some friends who are members of the "Fatana" company, which will play at a local theater this week. Sloan did not register, and left strict orders with the hotel clerks that his identity should not be divulged to the newspapers. It was impossible for a man of Sloan's reputation and diminutive stature to escape detection, however.

Walking about the corridor of the hotel with a cigar in his mouth almost as long as himself, the little jockey was a target for all eyes. For the past few months the turf critics have been heralding the fact abroad that Sloan is penniless and that he appeared at the eastern tracks during the fall meetings in garments that "had seen better days." His appearance yesterday did not indicate that he was lacking in funds. His clothing is of the latest cut, his baggage comprised eight trunks, and from the manner in which he puffed away at his 50-cent cigar he seemed well supplied with the good things of life.

Sloan seemed to be in perfect physical condition. His eyes are clear and he at once impressed one as a man who is taking the best of care of himself. He would not be interviewed. This is Sloan's first visit to this city. It is said that he will ride at the winter meeting at New Orleans and return east next spring, when it is thought that he will be reinstated in time to ride on the eastern tracks.

Sloan has ridden the best race horses in the world. While in Europe he rode for the Prince of Wales. Sloan is said to have made and spent almost $1,000,000 during his career as a jockey.

Opens a New Route.

The Pennsylvania company formally opened its new route between Cleveland and Pittsburgh via Ravenna, Youngstown and New Castle yesterday. A special train in charge of District Passenger Agent J. B. Modieste, carrying railway officials and newspaper representatives of Cleveland, made an inspection trip over the new route, going as far east as New Castle, Pa. By the construction of a line between Ravenna and Niles, the Pennsylvania is enabled to reach Youngstown, New Castle and other important points on a direct line between Cleveland and Pittsburgh, which also shortens by a few miles the distance between the latter cities. The new schedule, which went into effect yesterday, provides for eight daily trains each way between Cleveland and Pittsburgh, two of which will run via Youngstown and New Castle. There will also be two additional trains between Cleveland and New Castle daily.

Pioneer of Technical Instruction.

The death at Ithaca a few days ago of Prof. John Lewis Morris of Cornell university may be considered as marking an epoch in the history of the technical instruction in the universities of this country. FATHER WILLIAM'S ADVICE.

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,
"And I know your advice is sage;
Then how to get on in the world, would you
Advise a young man of my age?"
"Look around you, my son," Father William replied,
"And watch out for others' mistakes.
For the easiest way to get wise in your youth
Is to find out how not to make breaks.

"Keep up with the daily procession, my son;
If you fall back, it walks over you.
Hop, skip, slide or jump, so you keep going on.
Don't stumble, whatever you do.
Heed the lesson that Great Britain's premier gives
Of letting affairs get beyond;
They're saying they don't want tame ducks paddling 'roun'
In matters across the big pond.

"Your friendships, my son, you must form with keen eye
To what the dim future may bear;
In confidence be not an easy 'come-on,'
Of heart-to-heart converse beware.
For if you are reading the papers, my son,
You must see how rash confidence ends.
There's nothing so apt to turn up at odd times
As a lot of 'rantankerous friends.'"

"You are wise, Father William," the young man replied,
"I'll follow your seasoned advice."
"Then take one tip more from my knowledge, my son,
And you'll find the way clear in a trice;
Experience of all is the very best school,
But like others it has its rebates.
And if you will learn how the other man failed
You will get the course at marked down rates."

JEWS CELEBRATE FIRST LANDING

Commemorate Initial Colonization in the United States 250 Years Ago.

RUSSIA GETS MEMORIAL FUND

Upwards of 1,200 people gathered in Carnegie Music hall, Allegheny, yesterday morning to participate in the commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the settlement of Jews in the United States. The anniversary dates from the landing of 15 families in what is now New York in 1655, when it is said that Gov. Peter Stuyvesant denied them admittance and they located in Rhode Island.

The anniversary yesterday was celebrated throughout the country under direction of a national committee, of which the Hon. Jacob H. Schiff of New York is chairman and former Judge Joslah Cohen and the Rev. Dr. J. Leonard Levy of this city are members.

It had been the intention of this national committee to erect a memorial fountain in New York city to commemorate the 250th anniversary, but Mr. Cohen announced at the meeting yesterday that the funds raised for that purpose had been applied to the relief of the Russian sufferers and no fountain would be built.

The order of the service held yesterday morning included responsive readings from Psalms 107 and 118 and a special prayer written for the occasion by Dr. Levy. Following a short address by Mr. Cohen, Dr. Levy delivered a lecture on "The Jew in America." Among those present were representatives from 20 Jewish organizations in Allegheny county.

The Jew in America.

Dr. Levy in his lecture said in part:

Today might have been one of the most joyous occasions in the history of the house of Israel, celebrating as it does, the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the first Jewish settlement in what we now call the United States. Today might have brought us a compensation for the sufferings endured by those whom the poet calls "tribes of the wandering feet," since here in this free and happy land the Jewish people enjoy, in common with their fellow-citizens of other creeds, the rights of civil, political and religious liberty. Alas, that the bright day should be darkened by sombre clouds; alas, that the bright page should be bordered with the sign of mourning. While on all sides throughout this land the grateful soul of Israel expresses thanks to the Almighty for His gracious providence and for the generous spirit of liberty manifested in America, the groans and moans, the sighing and crying of our co-religionists in darkest Russia, fall upon our ears and, inverting the words of the psalmist, we may say, "Thou hast turned my dancing into mourning, Thou has put off my gladness and hast girded me with sackcloth."

And, yet, we must today encourage ourselves with the belief that generous America will not be unmindful of the fact that in all stages of this country's story the Jewish people have been identified with all that has gone to make America great. There is no incident in connection with America's history from the day on which Christopher Columbus left Palos for the supposed West Indies until today but the Jew has contributed his help and has in every way, in common with his fellow-citizens of other creeds, endeavored to show his appreciation of the glorious opportunities afforded by our liberal and righteous form of government.

Jew Furnished Columbus Money.

It has been established historically that the means which enabled Christopher Columbus to set out on his mission of discovery were furnished to the Spanish authorities by a Jew, Louis de Santangel, and that the pawning of the crown jewels for this purpose is an absurd myth. The chart and compass used by the great navigator were given him by a Jew, Judah Cresques. The ship physician in the expedition of Columbus was a Jew named Bernsil, as was also the surgeon, Marco, and the superintendent of the entire expedition who sailed with Columbus at the request of Queen Isabella, was a Jew named Sanchez. The first man to sight land was a Jew named Triana, and the first white man to land on this continent was Louis de Torres, a Jew.

The same deep interest has been shown by the Jewish people in the development of America. Though only a few hundred were in this country at the time of the revolution and the war of 1812, they contributed their proportion to those who bore military and naval service. If the soldier and the sailor are to be taken as types of the patriot, then has the Jew indeed been among the most patriotic. In the civil war the roster shows that 5 per cent of the Jews of America did active service on the battle field, and during the Spanish war over 4,000 men received furloughs to observe the Jewish holidays in September, 1898. Theodore Roosevelt asserted that Jewish men in the Rough Riders "displayed the most astonishing courage," and in a letter addressed to me by Admiral Dewey the following statement appears:

"There were a number of Jews in the squadron under my command during the late war with Spain and they, in common with men of other creeds in that squadron, performed their duty in the best possible manner."

The Jew as a Citizen.

In every activity, whether it be commercial or professional, whether it be in the ranks of labor or capital, the Jew has faithfully endeavored to add to the resources of the nation so that America is the better for having this thrifty, domestic, sober people against whom the world has ever been arrayed, but who in spite of 1800 years of hate and persecution have arisen to the occasion whenever the opportunity was granted to them.

It is very easy for people to be prejudiced against the Jew, but prejudice harms those who harbor it much more than those against whom it is harbored. The Jew is not perfect, he is human and therefore full of human weaknesses. It is unjust to expect perfection in others when the world knows that it has its failings. The Jews know that the generous breasts of their mother faith have given nourishment to the world-ruling faiths of the west and he will not desert his mother even though he be called upon to pay a terrible price for his faithfulness. The Jew is proud of the old blood that flows in his veins and he is so proud of it that he could wish that he were worthy of it, that he strives to be true to it.

The occasion we celebrate today must lead the world to revise its opinions concerning the Jew and his beliefs and must serve as a mentor to the Jew to prove his gratitude to the American spirit and his faithfulness to its ideals. Having served the state from the day when Hays Solomon of Philadelphia loaned the Continental congress $300,000 without interest and not a cent of which has yet been paid to any of the family of Solomon, until today when, in this age of graft and craft, the lists of the accused have been singularly free of Jewish names, the Jew, self-respecting and loyal, will continue to believe in his God and his truth until shall be fulfilled for him the words of the psalmist: "Thou has turned my mourning into dancing, thou hast put off my sackcloth and girded me with joy."

When Bishop Will Pontificate.

Bishop Canevin did not take part in any public function at the Epiphany church yesterday, although he said low mass in the morning and appeared as an auditor in the sanctuary at a lecture in the church in the evening. The first occasion on which the bishop will appear officially is at the pontifical high mass, to be celebrated on December 8, the feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Virgin Mary.

DONATE $15,000 FOR NEW CHURCH

TO ERECT $40,000 STRUCTURE

To meet the conditions of a gift of valuable property upon which to erect a new church, the congregation of the Eleventh United Presbyterian church, California and Davis avenues, Allegheny, yesterday morning contributed $15,000 towards the erection of a new stone church at an approximate cost of $40,000.

Several weeks ago James M. Young, George T. McDonald and A. V. Purnell, members of the church, offered the congregation a lot on Termon avenue, near California avenue, as a gift, providing the congregation would raise $15,000 for a new church to be erected upon it. This gift, with its condition, was announced from the pulpit by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. C. E. Wishart, yesterday morning, and within a half hour the $15,000 had been subscribed. The site is on Termon avenue, one lot removed from California avenue. It has a frontage of 100 feet in Termon avenue and a depth of 135 feet.

A congregational meeting will soon be held, when a building committee will be appointed and plans for the new church will be called for at once. The present church is a frame structure and the property as a whole is valued at $10,000.

Dr. Wishart yesterday morning preached on "Practical Thanksgiving," taking for his text Psalm cxvi:12, and saying in part:

My text suggests the practical side of thanksgiving. True gratitude to God is not a mere matter of sentiment, of theory, of words, however devotional, or promises, however rosy. It is to "render" something to Him; to do something for Him and give Him the glory. It means not only the recognition of what He is and what He has done, the grateful rejoicing in His presence and grace, but the earnest resolve to make some return for His goodness. It is true no such return can be adequate. We cannot render to God a "quid pro quo"—an adequate recompense for value received. But we can make some return. And we must make the best return in our power, else our thanksgiving is mere lip service.

Too many of us are only thinking of what we can receive from God—never of what we can render to Him. We are beggars subsisting on the divine bounty. We are sinners resting under covert of His long suffering patience. And we presume on His gifts, and even complain if largess be withheld, little recking of our own responsibility. You have heard of that Spanish beggar on the streets of Madrid who received daily alms from a wealthy gentleman who passed his corner on the way to the bank. One week the business man fell sick, and for many days was confined to the house. Venturing out once more and passing by the beggar's corner he was soundly rated by the impudent alms-seeker for his negligence, and informed that he was liable for back pay. So come we to God, claim His bounty, and feel injured if it is ever withheld, but think all too little of what God expects by way of return. What does He expect? A day of reverent worship, of confession of sin.

Donation Day at Deaconess Home.

The annual donation day of the Pittsburgh Deaconess Home of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held at the home, 2000 Fifth avenue, tomorrow. There is a special need at this time for gas study lamps, rugs, carpets, window shades, cooking utensils, dining room pitchers, old sheets and pillow cases, and carpet sweepers. Contributors are requested to label all donations. Mrs. Samuel Hamilton of North Highland avenue, East End, treasurer of the Deaconess board, will be glad to receive the $10 subscriptions from the old friends who have contributed annually, and any amount will be gratefully accepted.

"Strange Facts of Human Experience."

The Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley of New York will lecture at an open meeting of the Men's Guild of Calvary M. E. church, Allegheny, this evening at 8 o'clock, on "Some Strange Facts of Human Experience."

EAST LIBERTY Y. M. C. A. HAS ITS ANNIVERSARY

Chairman's Report Shows Good Condition—Dr. Buckley Speaks.

The East Liberty branch of the Young Men's Christian association celebrated the 31st anniversary in the East Liberty Presbyterian church yesterday. The address was made by the Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley of New York, editor of the Christian Advocate.

The exercises were held in the afternoon. Ex-Congressman James W. Brown was introduced by John L. Moore, chairman of the branch, as chairman of the meeting. Mr. Brown reminded his hearers that the work of reforming the world rested on the young men of today. Prayer was offered by the Rev. John T. Hillman, and the scriptural lesson was read by the Rev. David L. Ferris. Edward H. Dermitt sang the baritone solo, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus."

The report of the chairman, John L. Moore, showed that the membership of the East Liberty branch is 778, 315 members joining during the past 12 months. The Saturday afternoon meetings had been well attended, and the average attendance at the gospel meetings was 49. Six special evangelistic meetings during February and March were attended by 925 men. There were 1,500 circulating books in the library, 14,171 baths were taken during the year, and 18 lectures and entertainments were held, the average attendance being more than 100.

Dr. Buckley's theme was "Self-Made and Self-Unmade Men." The popular idea of a self-made man is a man without fortune or learning who, by sheer force of will, backed by brains, forges ahead and makes a name and fortune for himself; but, according to Dr. Buckley, any man who earns enough to keep his family and pay his debts is a self-made man and a good citizen. Then, too, a man may work his way through college and, coming out, be classed as a "college man," but he is as much a self-made man as a self-made man in other walks of life.

Adam, the speaker said, had the best chance of any man, for he had no heredity behind him, but he unmade himself. Cain unmade himself by his temper; Samson was a strong man, but he surrendered to a designing woman, perhaps a sort of Mrs. Chadwick of those days. In the course of his own experience as minister and editor, the speaker said he had seen a large number of persons who unmade themselves by neglect.

The exercises closed with the benediction, invoked by the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Sneed.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—William Huber, aged 30, a freight brakeman on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, fell under his train this afternoon and was ground to pieces in front of his home, while his mother, powerless to help him, looked on.

FARMERS REALIZE FONDEST DREAMS

Crops in United States Reach Highest Amount Ever Attained in Any Country.

FOUR RECORDS ARE BROKEN

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—"Wealth production on the farms of the United States in 1905 reached the highest amount ever attained in this or any other country—$6,415,000,000." In the first annual report of his third term, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson presents an array of figures and statements representing the products and profits of the farmers of the country which he admits "Dreams of wealth production could hardly equal."

Four crops make new high records as to value—corn, hay, wheat and rice, although in amount of production the corn crop is the only one that exceeds previous yields. In every crop the general level of production was high and that of prices still higher.

Besides the enormous yield of wealth, the secretary estimates that the farms of this country have increased in value during the past five years to a present aggregate of $6,133,060,000. "Every sunset during the past five years," he says, "has registered an increase of $3,000,000 in the value of the farms of this country."

The Crop Report "Leak."

This increased value, the secretary suggests, is invested better than in bank deposits or even in the gilt-edged bonds of private corporations.

In dealing with the crop report "leak" Secretary Wilson, after referring to the "gross breach of trust on the part of the employes of the bureau of statistics," says:

"This department acted with vigor and dispatch when it got evidence of wrongdoing on the part of its own officials, but we have no evidence of disciplinary or preventive action at the traders' end of the line, where gamblers, interested neither in the production nor consumption, disturb values to the injury of both, and make loud outcry when creatures of their own kind corrupt officials to betray confidence for the love of money. The responsibility for this 'leak' is shared by everyone who, to get money without work, gambles in farm products. When this form of industry ceases, these parasites who tempt department officials will have to work for their bread."

The method of handling crop reports, he says, has been thoroughly recast during the year. There has also been a decided change in the methods of work prescribed for field agents, each agent is now confined to a definite group of states with which he becomes thoroughly familiar by travel each month.

Analyzing the principal crops for the year the secretary says that corn reached its highest production with 2,708,000,000 bushels, a gain of 42,000,000 over the next lowest year, 1898; hay is second in order of value, although cotton held second place during the two preceding years. The hay crop this year is valued at $605,000,000. Cotton comes third, with a valuation of $575,000,000, wheat $525,000,000, oats $282,000,000, potatoes $138,000,000, barley $58,000,000, tobacco $52,000,000, sugar cane and sugar beets, $50,000,000, rice $13,892,000, dairy products $765,000,000, an increase of $54,000,000 over last year.

A Companion of the Cow.

"The farmer's hen," the secretary says, "is becoming a worthy companion to his cow. The annual production of eggs is now 20,000,000,000. Poultry products have climbed to a place of more than $500,000,000 in value, so the farmer's hen competes with wheat for precedence."

There are more horses and with a larger aggregate value than ever before, notwithstanding, as the secretary says, they were first threatened by the bicycle and later by the suburban trolley and the automobile. He estimates their value at $1,250,000,000, or nearly as much as the corn crop, and the value of mules at $252,000,000.

Although milch cows are increasing in number and value, the report states that other cattle and sheep have for several years been decreasing. There are 17,570,000 milch cows, valued at $482,000,000. Other cattle are numbered at 43,669,000 with a value of $962,000,000. Swine number 47,321,000 valued at $283,255,000. In the aggregate the value of farm animals has increased a few million dollars within the year, and since the census of 1900 have increased 9 per cent.

The report concludes:

"Should there be no relapse from his present position as a wealth producer three years hence, the farmer will find that the farming element, about 35 per cent of the population, has produced an amount of wealth within 10 years equal to one-half of the entire national wealth produced in three centuries.

"Great as has been the work undertaken and accomplished by this department, gratifying as have been the results, be it remembered that we are still at the threshold of agricultural development, and that the educational work which has led to such grand results has only been extended as yet to a portion of our agricultural population. There is not an intelligent, patriotic citizen in the union who will not say with his whole heart: 'Let the good work go on.'"

BIG TRADE WITH CANADA.

More Than Half of the Dominion's Imports Are Purchased in the Markets of the United States.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The United States sold Canada last year exports to the value of $166,000,000. This amount constituted more than 62 per cent of the whole Canadian imports, but was only 11 per cent of the foreign exports of the United States. This statement is contained in a report of Charles M. Pepper, special agent of the department of commerce and labor, resulting from his study of Dominion trade conditions.

Besides selling goods to Canada, Mr. Pepper says that 25,000 settlers went from the United States to its northern neighbor from January to October, 1905, and that the value of their effects was $10,000,000. This number of emigrants from the United States is less than for the two preceding years. The new wheat fields of the Dominion's great northwest are the attraction to those seeking new homes in Canada.

INGRAM WANTS TO ENTER THE CITY

MASS MEETING TOMORROW

The borough of Ingram is knocking at the door of Pittsburgh for admission, but annexation is blocked by the Pittsburgh councils, acting under the instructions of Director Bigelow, in holding up the ordinance for the annexation of the second district of Chartiers township, which lies between Ingram and the city.

Ingram cannot be annexed to Pittsburgh until the Second district of Chartiers township is annexed, because the Goehring law provides that only contiguous territory can be taken in. By the annexation of that portion of Chartiers township separating Ingram from the city the borough could also be brought into the city.

People of Ingram who favor annexation with Pittsburgh and who are anxious to have it brought about at an early date have taken the initiative in calling a mass meeting of the citizens of the borough, which will be held tomorrow night at Association hall, Prospect avenue. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Civic league, an organization of the borough. The directors of the league met last Tuesday night and unanimously indorsed a resolution in favor of annexation. The meeting tomorrow night will be to hear arguments for and against annexation, and if the majority declares in favor of annexation the meeting will determine some method of securing it. The president of the league is Percy F. Smith.

"Under the present law Ingram cannot be taken into Pittsburgh until the Second district of Chartiers township is annexed, because that portion of the township lies between the borough and the city," said Mr. Smith. "We have a population of about 1,500. The borough is well improved and in this respect is in good condition to be made a part of the city. If we are kept out of Pittsburgh, under the present law, by the refusal of the Pittsburgh councils to admit the Second district of Chartiers township, we may get in under the proposed new Greater Pittsburgh bill, which will be introduced at the coming extra session of the legislature. This will be one of the things that will be discussed at the meeting tomorrow night. The new bill is expected to include our borough."

Director Bigelow not only ordered the holdup of the bills for the annexation of the two districts of Chartiers township, but he also had shelved the ordinance for the annexation of West Liberty township. The three measures were referred to a special committee chosen with care to ascertain the political conditions of the territory asking for admission to the city. The administration is opposed to the annexation of any territory that will bring in votes for the Republican candidate for mayor of Pittsburgh in February, consequently, every application for annexation will be closely scrutinized.

The committee to which the annexation bills were referred has not held a meeting nor made a report, and is not likely to make one before the first day of January, the time set for the admission of new territory to the city. The only territory to be annexed on the first of January and which will participate in the February election will be Sterrett township, which is to be added to the Thirty-seventh ward, and Esplen borough, which will constitute the Fortieth ward of the city.

FORCED TIPPING MAY DISAPPEAR

Great Boon Which Formation of Waiters' Union Is Expected Incidentally to Produce.

EMPLOYERS' SNAP IN DANGER

That the tipping habit can be entirely abolished by the organization of all good waiters into a union is hardly hoped by the men behind the movement, but they do hope the waiter's share in the bad custom can be much reduced. A waiters' union was organized here six weeks ago. Already more than 100 men have joined and nine were initiated yesterday. They do not take a pledge not to take tips, but if they finally succeed in making their employers pay their wages instead of depending upon the customers for a living, it is predicted that tipping will be reduced to a minimum.

J. K. Robinson of Denver is the national organizer forming the waiters' union here. Mr. Robinson was at the meeting held in the Hotel Griswold yesterday afternoon and he and others made speeches urging zealous work to spread the organization. The number of the local union is 424, and it belongs to the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International alliance, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

"I do not know that any union can ever succeed in making the customer whom the waiter serves refrain from rewarding good, attentive and perfect service," said Mr. Robinson yesterday, "but a union can create such a spirit among its members that none of them will neglect their customers because they have not been tipped, or will give attentive service merely in the hope of getting a tip. The wages of waiters in the so-called better class of restaurants and hotels are based on the tipping custom, that is, the wages are not in themselves living wages, for the employer expects the waiter to make up the difference from the customers, that is, expects his customers or patrons to make up the wage which the employer himself by right ought to pay.

"The object of our union is to organize the waiters so that eventually their work shall stand on the same footing as that of the other trades, and will be paid accordingly; that no more shall a waiter have to pay either his employer or a headwaiter for the privilege of working.

"The custom of paying a waiter merely nominal wages, with the knowledge that the customer would somehow make it up is unfair to the waiter and to the customer. The union wants the employer to pay living wages, and the habit of indiscriminate tipping, the forced tipping in order to secure good service, as distinguished from the willing reward given freely for good service and attentive treatment, will be abolished, for the waiter will receive the proper wages from his employer.

"Of course, I don't want you to understand that one of the stated objects of our union is to abolish tipping; the object is to raise the plane of the waiter's occupation, so protect the waiter, so that the wages he receives will have no relation to the tips which he may or may not receive. We think that when this condition has been brought about, the waiter receives justice from his employer, and the injustice of taxing the customer to pay the employer's expenses will happily be abolished."

Future meetings of the local union will be every Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the hall of the Duquesne Greys in the market house. The offices of the union are in room 210 Ferguson building.

Harvest Home Celebration.

At the Second Presbyterian church, Eighth street, a "Harvest Home" service was held yesterday morning, the Rev. S. Edward Young taking for his text: "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves." The church was attractively decorated with grains, fruits, etc., suggestive of the nature of the service. Announcement was made that the decorations would be still further added to for the Thursday morning Thanksgiving service, and a request was made that every worshiper on that occasion carry a small United States flag.

CRANK PURSUES DRAMATIC STAR

He Seeks an Interview With Mrs. Carter and Is Thrown Out of the Hotel.

DETECTIVES GUARD ACTRESS

Mrs. Leslie Carter closed her fortnight's engagement at the Belasco theater Saturday night under the guard of detectives. Since coming to Pittsburgh she has been pursued by a crank, and his interest in the star became so persistent that the Pittsburgh bureau of detectives was called upon to prevent him from meeting her. After Mrs. Carter refused to see him and had thrown his letters away unanswered, he went to the Hotel Schenley to call upon her and was unceremoniously thrown into the street.

The crank, who is a man well known on the New York Rialto, came upon the scene in Pittsburgh more than a week ago. He was well provided with money and commenced his campaign by sending notes to Mrs. Carter. These were ignored and he became more persistent. Early in the week he went to the hotel and took a room, sending more notes to Mrs. Carter at close range. This brought the climax. A member of Mrs. Carter's company encountered the fellow and literally rushed him down the stairs and out of the door.

At the same time the detective bureau was appealed to and Detective Rice was detailed upon the case. It was feared that the man would go to the theater and disturb the performance, and for three days Detective Rice guarded Mrs. Carter and kept a sharp eye on the front of the house to prevent him from gaining entrance there. Orders were issued for his immediate arrest should he come upon the premises. However, he was foxy enough to keep in the background and Mrs. Carter will go to Philadelphia today, the same surveillance being maintained by the railroad detectives on the journey.

This is only one instance of Mrs. Carter's souvenir memories of Pittsburgh. Four years ago some Pittsburgh ministers banded themselves together to prevent her performance of "Zaza," and on her last engagement her scenery was held up by blue law crusaders, while it was being hauled to the theater on Sunday night.

SOME VIOLENT MOVEMENTS UPSET SPECULATIVE MARKET

Irregularity Is the Chief Characteristic of Wall Street Trading—Monetary Position Improved While Speculative Stocks Weakened.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Marked irregularity, accompanied upon occasions by violent and seemingly reckless movements in certain specific stock issues, was the chief characteristic of Wall street's business week. An explanation which satisfied most persons, bent upon having some reason for the wide fluctuations, was that heavy profit taking and distributive selling by some speculative pools and cliques was in progress, coincident with continued manipulative upbidding elsewhere in the list.

In a general way the monetary position improved while the speculative stock market position weakened. At this time neither the one tendency or the other is necessarily conclusive in indicating the course of things in the immediate future, nor is it unprecedented with relaxing money rates to find stocks hesitating, develop irregularity and decline. If speculative markets would be gauged and measured by one or two features alone all men would be successful in their ventures and no one would make a mistake in trying to solve the problems.

The argument of the leading element that there are only two guesses in the market, and that prices must either advance or decline, is well enough its way, but the guesses are complicated enough when it comes to the application of this simple rule, to purchase or sell, among a thousand diversified issues, unstable at best, and swayed or influenced by countless considerations, some general, others specific, and others still of a purely technical character, upon which no man can reckon with accuracy, or, for that matter, reckon at all.

It is assuredly a matter of great gratification, and particularly so to the business community, that the money market has shown such evidences of improvement as it has since the flurry of two weeks ago. Independent entirely of what one's individual opinion may be concerning speculative stock, nothing could have been more unfortunate or injurious to the country and its material prosperity than a collapse of credit wrought by the bursting of a speculative bubble. If that has been definitely averted well and good. Yet whether it is wholly wise, even with the improvement noted, to entirely disregard the warning given, and to assume that because credit withstood so successfully the enormous strain put upon it that it can withstand any and every strain, may be doubted.

Money, as brokers in Wall street put it, loaned during the week "ex-scare." Naturally, as the time of the year is at hand when the return flow of currency from the interior is looked for, the presumption is that the heavy cash increase of $8,269,100, shown by the associated banks on Saturday, which established the surplus reserve at the comfortable figure of $8,157,050, reflects the inception of the movement. That it does to some degree is not to be doubted, but is still an open question whether it is an entirely free movement and likely to be sustained in full volume in subsequent weeks, or a movement somewhat forced by the 20 to 25 per cent call and 6 to 9 per cent time money rates of the recent past.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(Copyright Cable.)—In not one section of the house has anything like a fair measure of business been done during the last week, while the market, which opened dull, has gradually become firmer as the monetary aspect has improved slightly and affairs in Russia have become less threatening.

On the other hand the Macedonian affair has assumed a foreboding appearance and further the prospect of an early general parliamentary election can hardly be described as a bull point at the same time, while transactions have been on a limited scale, prices generally have kept up fairly well, and show on an average a slight improvement. British government and other gilt edged stocks have moved up distinctly, and the gold movement and other circumstances supporting the hope that no advance in the bank rate will be necessary this year.

In spite of the troubles in Russia and Turkey foreign stocks have gained in market value, even Russian and Turkish issues showing in the improvement. Home rails have been much less active, and show a partial reaction in quotations, but Americans have recovered, buying here having been mainly devoted to Erie common and Union Pacific, which show advances of 1⅛ and 5⅛ respectively, as compared with last week. On the other hand Reading has fallen 1¼ and New York Central ½.

Foreign railway stocks are as a rule somewhat higher than a week ago, but business in them has been of small volume.

MERCHANTS EXPECT ENORMOUS BUSINESS

Trade Will in All Probability Be Exceptionally Heavy During the Present Week.

Today promises to be an active one in all the markets. The last days of last week were dull, but this was attributed to the holding off of buyers until this week. Business is expected to start with a rush this morning.

The markets of Saturday were steady, with few changes in prices. The most notable, perhaps, was the reduction in live turkeys, which can now be bought for from 14 to 15 cents a pound. Dressed turkeys remain the same as on Friday. Large shipments are expected today, and the supply of birds for Thanksgiving will be very heavy. The weather is mild over the entire country, which has had a depressing effect on the general turkey market. Should a snow fall occur between now and Thanksgiving a better market would result.

Potatoes continue in good demand, with the supply of fine stock just medium. On this account sweets are perhaps having the largest sale. Celery is finding a good sale when of proper quality.

Cheese remains unchanged, with the exception that receipts are a little better than they have been for some time past. There is no change in the price.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts yesterday were: Pennsylvania, 20 cars hay, 20 cars corn, 17 cars oats, 1 car rye; Baltimore & Ohio, 8 cars hay, 1 car corn, 3 cars oats, 1 car bran; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 4 cars hays, 1 car oats, 1 car corn, 1 car rye.

Last week was active, with a strong demand for the best grades of hay, top grades bringing good prices. Oats are in good demand, but receipts are not heavy. The receipts of corn and hay are heavier than the demand, making concessions necessary to produce sales. Straw continues in strong demand.

Operators Finding Few Gushers, But Hope for New Territory

Operators in the lower southwest fields are not finding any gushers in old or new territory, but nevertheless are meeting with some encouragement in making discoveries that may lead to the development of new territory, capable of furnishing light producers. Since the advance in the market efforts along that line have been confined to the shallow sand districts. The deep sand districts, no doubt, hold undiscovered pools, but it has been regarded too hazardous to drill for them even at the advance in the price. The old fields that have been under development for some years show a falling off in new work during the past month, and the prospects are not encouraging for a revival till a greater advance in the market. The great expense of drilling and operating the wells after completion is such that there is little or no inducement to make the investment.

Just at this time the outlook in Ritchie county is most promising. The chances for the development of a body of salt sand territory are good. Discoveries of the past two weeks, in what has been known as the Goose Creek section, have been such as to lead to the opinion that a considerable body of production can be obtained from that formation. The test wells drilled in on the Chancellor and Templeton farms are rated as good for 25 barrels each from the salt sand, and it looks now as though the development of a stretch of territory several miles in length, with an undetermined width, had been discovered and awaits development.

The most important discovery of recent date in the deep sand districts is southwest of Littleton, near Uniontown, Wetzel county. The test drilled by the Hope Natural Gas company, on the David Sole farm, was given a shot during the past week and responded by producing 80 barrels the ensuing 24 hours. In the same section the Hope company completed and shot a test on the W. J. Cross farm and has a 40-barrel producer. Both tests got their oil in the Gordon formation, and show a southwest extension to the Smithfield field. A good deal was expected from the gas companies in their operations. They were active all through the year, and their explorations extended over a large area. However, the expectations were not realized in oil discoveries, and the two just made by the Hope company are the largest and most promising of the year and will call out some new work.

The Smithfield district is completing some work, but it consists principally of old wells drilled down from the Big Injun to the Gordon. Some of these wells find oil in paying quantities in the lower formation, while in others the formation contains no oil or gas.

During the month six wells have been completed in Brock county; three are producers and the other three dusters. At the present time there are five wells drilling. Hancock county completed but six wells, two light pumpers, one gasser and three dusters. Across the state line, in Beaver county, six very light pumpers were completed, as were also two dusters and two gassers.

Southeastern Ohio shows a revival in development work in nearly all districts. The Berea grit development, east of Woodsfield, in Monroe county, still leads in the high average of production of wells completed. In the same district some very good producers have been completed in the Keener and Big Lime formations. The shallow sand districts, in Washington county, lead all others in the southeastern part of the state in work completed. The Marksburg, Wolf Creek and Chester Hill districts, in Morgan county, have placed more completions to their credit than any others. The Wolf Creek district has furnished some very greditable producers. The average, however, has been small.

The new development south of the Adams pool in Harrison county, is making a good record. Some of the best wells in this district have started at 100 barrels a day, and it is reported that a second test has been drilled in on the Zella Adams farm that is good for 200 barrels a day. All through the eastern part of Harrison county there is considerable test work starting.

The development on Wills creek, in Jefferson county, is still attracting some attention, but the late wells have come in light or dry. Development work has declined. And it is the general opinion that the pool has been defined. West of Empire, same county, a producing well was completed during the week, located some distance in advance of developments, and will be the incentive for starting some new work. The Homeworth development, in Columbiana county, claims to have a 200-barrel producer located north of developments. When drilled into the Berea, they say the well made several strong flows and was estimated to be good for better than 100 barrels a day. Later it was drilled deeper, and the showing improved to the extent that the estimate was raised to 200 barrels a day.

SAYS HIS FATHER LOAFS ABOUT THE HOUSE ALL DAY

A prisoner at the Central station hearings yesterday morning was Joseph Doyle, who is accused by his son, John, of stealing $150 from him. "He refuses to work," said the son, "and loafs around the house all day." The father was fined $10 and costs or 30 days to the workhouse.

OUR TRADE WITH CHINA.

Exports from United States Have More Than Doubled During the Past Year.

Exports from the United States to China in the ten months ended with October, 1905, are more than twice as great as in the corresponding period of any preceding year in the history of our commerce, and in the month of October, 1905, for which the department of commerce, through its bureau of statistics, has just announced the figures, the total was larger than in any preceding October with the single exception of October, 1904. The total value of merchandise exported from the United States to China in the ten months ended with October, 1905, was $50,104,767, against $20,557,184 in the corresponding ten months of 1904, which up to that time was the high record year in our export trade with China.

In the single month of October, 1905, the value of our total exports to China was $8,-138,645, against $3,846,893 in October, 1904; $1,234,-856 in October, 1903; $1,013,864 in October, 1902; $1,330,697 in October, 1901, and $679,405 in October, 1900. Thus the October, 1905, exports to China from the United States are larger than in any other October except that of 1904, and more than twice as large as the average October since 1900. Cotton clothing form more than one-half the total value of our exports to China at the present time.

Woman and Baby Burn to Death.

TOWANDA, PA., Nov. 26.—Mary Shalor, aged 30, and Henry Whitmiller, aged 8 months, were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed the house of William Ackley in Towanda township. Two men were seriously burned and several others sustained severe injuries. The inmates of the house had been drinking freely and the fire was started through the accidental upsetting of an oil lamp.

Small Transactions on The Bourse.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—(Copyright Cable.)—Though the bourse witnessed no large transactions during the week just past, the periods have been satisfactorily enough. There were some signs at the close that there would be a favorable reaction, but it is feared that the opening today will show the effects of the bad news from Russia. The new Japanese 4 per cent loan to be issued by the Rothschilds at 90 is already quoted at 92, and the 500 of the bonds issue at 449.50, now show a gain of about 2 per cent.

Mr. Frick Buys Coal Lands.

FAIRMONT, W. VA., Nov. 2,—(Special.)—Large tracts of coal lands in Barbour and Taylor counties have been purchased by H. C. Frick of Pittsburgh. The options were partially paid off last week and the land owners were notified that this week the rest would be paid. The coal is being purchased at $25 an acre, the total consideration being several hundred thousand dollars.

THE PHANTOM TORPEDO BOAT

Being the Secret History of the Russo-Japanese War.

By "A. V."

Author of "Underground History; the Revelations of an International Spy."

Copyright, 1905, by the Pearson Publishing Co.

The reception which I met from the dowager empress was gracious in the extreme. I need not recount all that passed. Her imperial majesty repeated with evident sincerity the assurances which had already been given me in a different spirit by the two arch-intriguers.

"There will be no war. The czar has personally intervened. He has taken the negotiations out of the hands of Count Lamsdorff, and written an autograph letter to the mikado which will put an end to the crisis."

I listened with distrust which I could not wholly conceal.

"I trust his majesty has not intervened too late," I said respectfully, my mind bent on framing some excuse to get rid of the listener. "According to the newspapers the patience of the Japanese is nearly exhausted."

"No more time will be lost," the czaritza responded. "The messenger leaves Petersburg tonight with the czar's letter."

I stole a cautious glance in the direction of the Princess Y——. She was breathing deeply, her eyes fixed on the czaritza's lips, and her hands clenched tightly.

I put on an air of great relief.

"In that case, your majesty, I have no more to do in Petersburg. I will wire the good news to Lord Redale, and return to England tomorrow, or next day. I beg your pardon, Princess!" I pretended to exclaim by a sudden afterthought, "after the next day." And turning once more to the mother of the czar, I explained:

"The princess has honored me with an invitation to dinner."

The dowager empress glanced at her attendant with evident surprise.

"I must implore your pardon, madame," the princess stammered, in real confusion, "I am aware I ought to have solicited your leave in the first place, but knowing that this gentleman came from——"

She broke off, fairly unable to meet the questioning gaze of her imperial mistress.

I pretended to come to her relief.

"I have a private message," I said to the empress.

"You may leave us, princess," the empress said coldly.

As soon as the door had closed on her, I gave a warning look to the czaritza.

"That woman, madame, is the most dangerous agent in the secret service of your empire."

I trusted to the little scene I had just contrived to prepare the mind of the czaritza for this intimation. But she received it as a mater of course.

"Sophia Y—— has been all that you say, Monsieur V——. I am well acquainted with her history. The poor thing has been a victim of the most fiendish cruelty on the part of the minister of police for years. At last, unable to bear her position any longer, she appealed to me. She told me her harrowing story, and implored me to receive her, and secure her admission to a convent. I investigated the case thoroughly."

"You majesty will pardon me, I am sure, if I say that as a man with some experience of intrigue, I thoroughly distrust that woman's sincerity. She is intimate with M. Petrovitch, to my knowledge."

"But M. Petrovitch is also on the side of peace, so I am assured."

I began to despair.

"You will believe me, or disbelieve me as your majesty pleases. But I am accustomed to work for those who honor me with their entire confidence. If the Princess Y—— is to be taken into the secret of my work on your majesty's behalf, I must respectfully ask to be released."

As I offered her majesty this alternative in a firm voice, I was inwardly trembling. On the reply hung, perhaps the fate of two continents.

But the dowager empress did not hesitate.

"What you stipulate for shall be done, Monsieur V——. I am too well aware of the value of your services and the claims you have on the confidence of your employers to dispute your conditions."

"The messenger who is starting tonight—does the princess know who he is?"

"I believe so. It is no secret. The messenger is Col. Menken."

"In that case he will never reach Tokyo."

Her majesty could not suppress a look of horror.

"What do you advise?" she demanded tremulously.

"His majesty the czar must at once write a duplicate of the dispatch, unknown to any living soul but your majesty, and that dispatch must be placed by you in my hands."

The dowager empress gazed at me for a moment in consternation.

But the soundness of the plan I had proposed quickly made itself manifest to her.

"You are right, Monsieur V——," her majesty said approvingly. "I will communicate with the czar without delay. By what time do you want the dispatch?"

"In time to catch the Siberian express tonight, if your majesty pleases. I propose to travel by the same train as Colonel Menken—it is possible I may be able to avert a tragedy."

"And since your majesty has told me that the Princess Y—— is aware of the colonel's errand, let me venture to urge you most strongly not to let her out of your sight on any pretense until he is safely on his way."

I need not go into the details of the further arrangements made with a view to my receiving the duplicate dispatch in secrecy.

I came away from the palace fully realizing the serious nature of my undertaking. I understood now all that had worried me in the proceedings of the princess. It was clear to me that Lord Redale, or the personage on whose behalf he instructed me, had wired to the dowager empress, notifying her majesty of my coming, and that she had shown the message to her lady-in-waiting.

Blaming myself bitterly for not having impression the necessity for caution on the marquis, I at once set about providing myself with a more effectual disguise.

It is a proverb on the lips of every moujik in Petersburg that all Russia obeys the czar, and the czar obeys the Tchin. Ever since the bureaucracy deliberately allowed Alexander II. to be assassinated by the Nihilists, out of anger at his reforming tendencies, the Russian monarchs have felt more real dread of their police than of the revolutionists. The Tchin, the universally-prevading body of officials, who run the autocracy to fill their pockets, and indulge their vile propensities at the expense of the governed, is as omnipotent as it is corrupt. Everywhere in that vast empire the word of the Tchinovnik is law—and there is no other law except his word.

Taking the bull by the horns, I went straight to the central police bureau of the capital, and asked to see a certain superintendent named Rostoy.

To this man, with whom I had had some dealings on a previous occasion and whose character was well understood by me, I explained that I had acquired a mission from a friendly power to travel along the Siberian railway and report on its capacity to keep the army of Manchuria supplied with food and ammunition in the event of war.

He expressed no surprise when I told him it was essential that I should leave Petersburg that night, and accordingly it did not take us long to come to terms.

The service which I required of him was of course, a fresh passport, with a complete disguise which would enable me to pass anywhere along the railway or in Manchuria without being detected or interfered with by the agents of the government.

After some discussion we decided that the safest plan would be for me to travel in the character of a Russian police officer charged with the detection of the train thieves and card-sharpers who abound on every great route of travel. I could think of no part which would serve better to enable me to watch over the safety of the czar's envoy without exciting suspicion.

I placed in Rostoy's hands the first instalment of a heavy bribe, and arranged to return an hour before the departure of the Moscow express to carry out my transformation.

It was only as I left the office that I remembered my unlucky engagement to dine that very night with the head of the Manchurian syndicate.

I perceived that these hospitalities were well devised checks on my movements, and it was with something of a shock that I realized that when I went to dinner that evening with the most active promoter of the war I should be carrying the czar's peace dispatch in my pocket!

If the enemies of peace had foreseen every step that I was to take in the discharge of my mission, their measures could not have been more skillfully arranged.

And as this reflection occurred to me I turned my head nervously, and remarked a man dressed like a hotel porter lounging carelessly in my track.

CHAPTER V.

A Dinner With the Enemy.

Readers of that prince of romancers, Poe, will recollect a celebrated story in which he describes the device employed by a man of uncommon shrewdness to conceal a stolen letter from the perquisitions of the police, and the elaborate argument by which the writer proves that the highest art of concealment is to thrust the object to be hidden under the very nose of the searcher.

But that argument is one of the many mystifications in which the weird genius of Poe delighted. It is easy to see, in short, that the theory was invented to suit the story, and not the story to suit the theory. I now had before me the practical problem of concealing a document of surpassing importance, from enemies who were already on my scent, and keeping it concealed during a journey of some thousands of miles.

The ordinary hiding-places of valuable papers, such as the lining of clothes, or a false bottom to a trunk, I dismissed without serious consideration. My luggage would probably be stolen, and I might be drugged long before I reached Dairy.

The problem was all the more difficult for me because I have generally made it a rule to avoid charging myself with written instructions. I am sufficiently well known by reputation to most European sovereigns to be able to dispense with ordinary credentials. But in approaching the mikado of Japan, a ruler to whom I was personally unknown, it was clearly necessary for me to have something in writing from the Russian emperor.

All at once an idea flashed on my mind, so simple, and yet so incapable of detection (as it seemed to me), that I almost smiled in the face of the man who was dogging my steps along the street, no doubt with instructions from the war syndicate.

That afternoon I was closeted with the Emperor of All the Russias in his private cabinet for nearly an hour.

It is not my habit to repeat details of private conversations, when they are not required to illustrate the progress of public events, and therefore I will say merely that the czar was evidently earnest in his desire to avoid war, but greatly hampered and bewildered by the different representations made to him by, or on behalf of, those to whose interests war was essential.

It was melancholy to see the destinies of half Europe and Asia, and the lives of scores of thousands of brave men, hanging on the will of an irresolute young man, depressed by the consciousness of his own infirmity, and desperately seeking for some stronger mind on which to lean. Had I not been placed by my Polish sentiment in a position of antagonism to the czardom, perhaps—but it is useless to indulge in these reflections.

One thing in the course of the interview struck me as having great significance for the future. I found that his majesty, who had entertained at one time a strong dislike of the German emperor, a dislike not unhinged with jealousy, had now completely altered his opinion. He spoke to me of Wilhelm II. in terms of highest praise, declared that he was under the greatest obligations to him for useful warnings and advice, said that he believed he had no truer or more zealous friend.

When I drove to the house of M. Petrovitch that evening I carried, carefully sewn between the inner and outer folds of my well-starched shirt-front, where no sound of crackling would excite remark, a sheet of thin note-paper covered in very small handwriting with the text of the czar's letter to the ruler of Japan.

M. Petrovitch was not alone. Around his hospitable board he had gathered some of the highest and proudest personages of the Russian court, including the Grand Duke Stanislano, generally believed to be the heart and soul of the war party. His imperial highness was well-known to be a desperate gambler, up to the neck in debts contracted at the cardtable; and bent on recouping himself out of the wealth of Korea and Manchuria.

THE REV. DR. SMITH CLOSES PASTORATE OF MANY YEARS

Bids a Touching Farewell to the Members of Christ Lutheran Church, East End.

The Rev. Dr. J. L. Smith, who for the past 14 years has been pastor of Christ Lutheran church, Sheridan avenue, East End, and who has been forced to give up active labor on account of failing health, preached his closing sermon Sunday morning to a large and attentive audience. He based his parting words on Acts x:28, "Therefore came I unto you without gainsaying, as soon as I was sent for; I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me."

Dr. Smith told of how, nearly 14 years ago, under discouraging circumstances, he came in obedience to a unanimous call from his congregation. He touched upon how he had been with his people in their times of sickness and death and how he had also participated in their times of joy, and spoke regretfully of the fact that he was saying farewell to his good friends among whom he had labored for so many years.

Dr. Smith presented statistics showing that during his pastorate he preached 1,478 sermons, received 415 members into the church, baptized 221 children, married 106 couples, attended and made addresses at 12 funerals, attended 682 Sunday school sessions, 670 lecture and prayer services, 160 Ladies' Aid society meetings and many other meetings of the Mission league, Lutheran league, Sunday School association and council meetings. The church, he said, has been greatly improved and made beautiful, and the money to pay for it is nearly all collected. An additional lot has been purchased and the whole property has been improved and greatly enhanced in value. The church is in an excellent condition to be further useful and successful. In concluding, Dr. Smith said: "My labors as your pastor are now ended. Be faithful to Christ and live at peace with each other, and the God of peace and love will be with you. Farewell. May God bless you."

FUNNY RAID ON YELLOW ROW FLAT

Temporary Apartments Established in Deserted Tenements Closed by Police.

BAN IS PUT ON SPEAKEASIES

The famous "Yellow Row" in Second avenue, which has stood vacant for the last six months because the police and tenement house inspectors have forbidden people to live there, was tenanted for about six hours yesterday. Pedestrians and neighbors heard singing at No. 659, which stands opposite the old gas works.

"They've opened a new flat in Yellow Row," somebody told the police.

"How is it furnished?"

"They may have mission furniture, but there are no curtains on the windows."

Then the patrol wagon was driven out that way and John Dunn and William Taylor, with two women, were found in the house. The furniture consisted of two stools, two soap boxes and an old stove. The larder consisted of a gallon jug of "cabdriver" whisky and two quart bottles of alcohol.

"We ain't doing nothin'," said Taylor when the police arrived.

"This is moving day," said the driver. "We've got the moving van here and you will have to take apartments down at Sixth and Cherry. Climb in."

The jugs and bottles were tossed over the hill and the quartet of tenants were locked up in Central station.

In the meantime other raids were made, and Curry and six visitors were found sitting around some bad liquor at 1220 Poplar alley and were arrested. Marshall Adams of 311 Wilson street, was locked up because he could not explain why he had 47 half pints of whisky and five cases of beer in his house.

Police Capt. Thomas McCabe raided 208 Market street at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, finding seven men playing cards on the second floor and 14 drinking liquor on the third floor. Charles Knapp was fined $100 and costs on a charge of keeping a gambling house. The seven men were fined $10 and costs. Mrs. Cleo Denniston, alleged to be in charge of the third floor, was fined $50 and costs, which was later reduced to $10 and costs. The 14 men were fined $5 and costs.

Charles Meyers and John Gillen were charged with selling liquor illegally at 1835 Webster avenue and were fined $100 and costs each. Seventeen men found in the place were fined $10 and costs each.

At a hearing before Magistrate Kane, Henry Gearhart and John Baker, who, it is alleged, run a gambling house at 5112 Butler street, were fined $50 and costs each. Six men arrested in a raid on an alleged gambling house at 713 Muriel street by Capt. Alt and Lieut. McAfee paid fines of $10 each.

A house at 4268 Second avenue, said to have been conducted by P. J. Casey, a bartender of Forward avenue, was raided yesterday. Casey and 15 visitors were arrested. While the raid was in progress Thomas Dixon and Thomas F. Sodders were arrested for interfering with the officers.

MR. BELMONT ANNOUNCES PUBLICITY COMMITTEE

Andrew Carnegie and John Wanamaker Are Among Men Who Will Support Movement.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Perry Belmont of New York, who is engaged in creating public interest in the subject of having state and national laws enacted for the publicity of contributions made to political committees and candidates for their election expenses, was here today and expressed himself as greatly encouraged by the large number of letters he has received from prominent men all over the country expressing a willingness to co-operate. Mr. Belmont has had replies from several hundred persons who are willing to serve on a committee, which will work for the passage by congress of a law which will require publicity of contributions made in national elections. Among those who will work for a national law while a state committee is also moving on Albany, are the following:

Former Governor F. S. Black, New York; Gov. Joseph M. Folk, Missouri; M. E. Ingalls, Ohio; John Wanamaker, Pennsylvania; J. H. Clark, Ohio; Judson E. Harmon, Ohio; John T. McGraw, West Virginia; Andrew Carnegie, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Belmont said tonight that he had no idea as to who would draw the bill which will be presented to congress. The desire is to have a non-partisan committee, and Republicans and Democrats alike are assenting to the general proposition that these accounts should be made public. The head of the committee will be chosen by the full committee when it is called together.

PENN SUGGESTS FOOTBALL RULES

Circular Letter Being Sent, Following President Roosevelt's Recommendations.

MANY POINTS ARE COVERED

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Following the suggestion of President Roosevelt for uniform eligibility rules in college athletics and for the elimination of unnecessary roughness, brutality and foul play in the American game of football, the University of Pennsylvania has taken the initiative for the suggested reforms and has addressed a circular letter on the subject to the heads of all universities, colleges, private schools and other institutions in the United States interested in athletics.

This action was taken after a number of meetings of the university committee on athletics of the University of Pennsylvania at which the president's thoughts on the subjects were discussed.

The committee formulated rules which it thought would meet the situation and decided to send them to the authorities of all educational institutions in the country for consideration and adoption if they met with approval. The letter is as follows:

"President Roosevelt, in a recent interview with a member of this committee (Prof. White), expressed his opinion as to the urgent need of an earnest and concerted effort to secure simplicity and uniformity in the eligibility rules of the colleges and universities of this country.

Definition of Rules.

"Prof. Hollis of Harvard has expressed the same thought. In his opinion, 'the backbone of college regulation of athletics' rests in three rules:

"1.—A definition of professionalism.

"2.—A rule which should require all members of athletic teams to be genuine students of the college which they represent, and to be satisfactory in their studies.

"3.—A rule to prevent the procurement of good players from other colleges by social or money inducements.

"The university committee on athletics of the University of Pennsylvania in an endeavor to cover these points and to provide a code which will meet all the desired requirements with thoroughness and at the same time with brevity and clearness, has formulated the enclosed rules and will advocate their adoption not only by their own institution but by the others whom they may meet in athletic competition. It believes that they will provide for all the exigencies which have hitherto arisen or that may arise, and if interpreted and accepted in the broad spirit which was appropriately described by President Roosevelt as a 'gentlemen's agreement,' will do away with the evils which have undoubtedly menaced intercollegiate athletics and will promote the best interests of clean, gentlemanly amateur sport.

"It therefore sends them to you for your consideration in the hope that they may be generally adopted by the educational institutions of the country that meet one another in friendly athletic rivalry.

New Rules Proposed.

"The committee begs to include a copy of a communication received by it from the board of coaches—through the chairman—which (so far as it feels itself competent to deal with the technicalities of football) meets with its approval, and is also submitted for consideration. The University of Pennsylvania is willing to request its representative on the football rules committee to vote for the changes in penalties suggested in this communication.

"A reply conveying your opinion as to both the matters thus submitted would be greatly appreciated.

"The committee, which is charged with 'everything pertaining to the relations, from the standpoint of athletics, of the University of Pennsylvania with other educational institutions,' takes this opportunity of publicly expressing its cordial and unreserved approval of all the views and purposes in relation to the game of football outlined by the President in the interview already referred to, and its intention to co-operate in every practical way in the effort to carry those purposes into effect."

The rules proposed by the University of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the suggestion of President Roosevelt, are as follows:

1. No student shall be allowed to represent any college or university in intercollegiate athletic contests until he has been in residence there as a bona fide student for an academic year, and shall have passed satisfactory examinations on a course of study as a candidate for a degree; or, if a special or partial student, shall have taken a course which requires at least 15 hours per week, and shall have passed satisfactory examinations in subjects aggregating at least 12 hours of such courses.

No student shall represent his college or university in intercollegiate athletic contests unless he shall be at the time in good academic standing in the class of which he is a member.

Would Bar Hired Men.

2. No student shall be allowed to represent his college or university in intercollegiate athletic contests who shall at any time have taught or coached in any athletic sport for a pecuniary or other consideration; or who shall at any time have received, for taking part in any athletic sport or contest, any pecuniary gain or emolument whatever, direct or indirect, with the exception that he may have received the amount by which the expenses necessarily incurred by him in taking part in such sport or contest exceeded his ordinary expenses.

In applying this rule the constituted authorities shall discriminate between the deliberate use of athletic skill as a means to a livelihood, and technical, unintentional or youthful infractions of the rule.

3. No student shall represent one or more universities or colleges in intercollegiate athletic contests for more than three years.

In determining what constitutes a university or college within the meaning of this rule, due consideration shall be given to the athletic and scholastic standing of the institutions represented.

A student who from any cause participates in intercollegiate athletic contests during only a small fractional part of a year, may in a succeeding year be charged with only that part of the year which is equivalent to that in which he participated during the incompleted year.

4. The rules regulating eligibility as formulated in this code shall be interpreted as representing merely a required minimum. No student shall be considered eligible to represent his college or university in athletics, merely because he satisfies these minimum requirements, but it shall be the duty of the constituted authorities to determine whether it is best, all things considered, for any particular student or for the institution that he be permitted to become its representative in any branch of athletics.

Arranging a Big Show.

Jack Johnson, the colored heavy-weight champion, will have the Philadelphia fighters in charge when they come here to meet the Pittsburgh boxers on next Monday night in the big inter-city contests at Old City hall. Eddie Kelly, Johnson's manager, has selected some of the best boys at their weight in the Quaker City. The four contests as arranged are Young Zirlinger, the 105-pound champion of this city, against Young Joe Grim, and Jock Phenicie will tackle Young Jack Johnson. Jimmy Mahoney, the boy who will meet Joe Alton, is a good one. Paul Moore will be called on to meet a tough one in Eddie Carter, the brother of the famous Kid Carter. Jimmy Maslo returned from the east Saturday. The arrangements by the Business Men's club for the holding of this show will be of the best.

Hanlon, Former Cub, Is Dead.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Nov. 26.—(Special)—William Hanlon, a well known ball player in the middle west and on the coast, died at his home here yesterday of consumption, which he contracted while a member of the Chicago National league team. Hanlon was taken east by the Chicago team three years ago because of the showing he made here as a first baseman. He was ill much of the time while he was east and did not make a brilliant record. He was known in Chicago as "the hitless wonder," owing to the fate that he was a failure at bat while on the team, although his fielding was of a sensational order.

Canton Wants Shortstop McGrew.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Manager Bade Myers of the Canton ball team wants Teddy McGrew, the clever shortstop of the Springfield team, to play with Canton next season. He may be traded for Hardy, an outfielder.

Opening of Duckpin League.

The Allegheny County Duckpin league will open its season tonight, the schedule being as follows: Majestic at Carrick, Southern at Federal, National at Great Eastern, Liberty at Mt. Washington, Imperial at Royal.

TWO YALE TEAMS ARE SEEKING KINNEY

Basketball and Hockey Clubs Want Him, So Does Coach Lush of the Nine.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 26.—Gilmore Kinney, Yale's star basketball and baseball player, has been the hero of an unusual struggle between the officials of two of the athletic organizations of New Haven.

The basketball team wanted him for this season, but the baseball players said that Kinney's basketball last year put him in poor condition for the baseball campaign.

Coach Lush said that he was worn out by the indoor work and could not get into shape for several weeks. As a result, it has been decided, first, that Kinney belongs primarily to the baseball team, because that is a major sport, and secondly, that he cannot play basketball because it might interfere with his work on the diamond.

Athletes Had to Choose.

It is a case unusual in athletics at big colleges, although it has happened, as in the case of Kernan of Harvard and Shevlin of Yale, where there had to be a choice between baseball and track athletics, both of which, however, are springtime sports.

Kinney not only was the best forward on the Yale team, but was picked by some as all-intercollegiate forward. With the exception of Fisher of Columbia Kinney threw more baskets than any other intercollegiate player last winter. As third baseman on the baseball nine he led with the stick the team that won the intercollegiate championship.

It has been decided at Yale that when there is a question about a player baseball takes precedence over basketball and hockey, and therefore Kinney has been ordered to quit the gymnasium game.

It is said that Kinney may be elected Yale's baseball captain in 1907, his senior year, and therefore he is not eager to lose that chance. Coach Lush says that he thinks basketball is the most exhausting of games, and that it takes the longest possible time to get back into condition a player who has gone stale while playing basketball.

Shevlin Is Versatile.

Tom Shevlin, Yale's football captain, is one of the best hockey players in the institution, but permission has been refused him to play the game because it is necessary for him to rest a few weeks in the winter after the close of the football season to get into condition for the track meets.

It is said that Shevlin is going out this winter to play hockey anyhow, because he is anxious to create a new Yale record by being on four teams in one year. This may be true, but Shevlin himself says that he is not going to throw the hammer next spring, in all probability. He is not likely to play baseball, either.

If he did take part in hockey, track work and baseball, in addition to his football playing, he would be able to class himself with Al Sharpe of Philadelphia, the greatest all-round man that Yale ever had.

Sharpe was a baseball player, a good football man, an oarsman, a gymnast and a basketball player. He was good at all these things. Three other men have won the Yale varsity letter in three sports. They are Oliver D. Thompson, '79; Morgan H. Bowman, '03, and Shevlin, who is a senior this year.

WASHINGTON PLAYER MISSING

Shortstop Joseph Cassidy Disappears and Friends Believe He May Have Met Foul Play.

CHESTER, PA., Nov. 25.—(Special.)—The aged mother and friends of Joseph Cassidy, the Washington American league baseball player, are greatly worried over his lengthy absence from home. The last heard from him was about the time Washington and the Athletics were playing the final game in Washington. He then wrote home, stating that he contemplated going on a short trip with some friends.

Since then nothing has been heard from him, although friends have been making inquiries concerning his whereabouts. As he generally carried a sum of money on his person, it is feared that he may have met with foul play. His mother is seriously ill, the result of worrying over his absence. Nothing was thought of his absence during the first two weeks, as it was believed he was simply enjoying a brief tour of the country before returning home, but as week after week passed and nothing was heard from him his relatives and friends became alarmed and began to make inquiries, which proved of no avail.

A few years ago the missing shortstop played on the lots in Chester. He finally secured a place on the Chester club and later joined one of the Pennsylvania State league clubs. His fine work attracted the attention of the American league managers, and it was not long before his services were secured by the Washington club from the Harrisburg Tristate league club.

DRAFTS THREE EYES SCHEDULE.

Secretary Thumler Increases the Number of Games from 126 to 140.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—The first of a series of new schedules for the season of 1906 has been drawn up by Secretary Thumler at Bloomington and submitted to the managers of the eight associations comprising the Three Eyes league.

This first schedule calls for 140 games, instead of 126 as has been the case in past seasons. It proposes to open the campaign May 3 and to close it on September 23. The mileage is almost one-fourth less than that of previous schedules, owing to the fact that both Rock Island and Davenport are placed in the western division of the circuit along with Dubuque and Cedar Rapids.

This arrangement will throw the two former teams at home on the same date. One will detract from the attendance of the other, but it is believed the difference in mileage will more than overcome this disadvantage.

CAPTAIN HURLEY PASSES A COMFORTABLE DAY

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Daniel J. Hurley, captain of the Harvard football team, who has been confined at the city hospital for several days suffering from an injury to the head, passed a comfortable day. For the first time since his admission to the hospital Capt. Hurley today sat up for a short time. The following official bulletin was issued at the hospital tonight:

"Capt. Hurley's symptoms continue slightly to improve. He is perfectly comfortable and was up in a wheelchair today for the first time. No immediate operation is probable. His convalescence, however, is certain to be slow."

Planning Wrestling Tournament.

KANSAS CITY, MO., Nov. 26.—W. D. Scoville, president of the Missouri Athletic club, today announced that the club would put on a wrestling tournament in Convention hall early in January, with competitors from all parts of the United States and Canada. Five thousand dollars in purses will be offered.

Carrick Changes Name.

The Carrick duckpin team of the Allegheny County league has changed its name to the Ahlberns. The following players are to report on the Carrick alleys tonight for game with Majestics: Glose, Kramer, Simmons, Viehler, Davies and Lewis.

Springfield Signs O'Leary.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—George O'Leary, a shortstop and brother of the shortstop of the Detroit American team, has been signed for the Springfield club for next year by Manager Hendricks.

Heston Gets $500 for One Game.

DES MOINES, IA., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Coach Heston will leave Des Moines Monday to go to Canton, O., where he will appear Thanksgiving day with the independent team. He gets $500 for the game.

BASKETBALL NOTES.

The North End players will report for practice tonight.

The champion Railroads have open dates for all fast teams at home. Address John Meisel, 929 Morrison avenue, Allegheny.

The Apollo team is in fine fettle for its opening game Thanksgiving evening with the Blacks of Pittsburgh. Arthur Anding has been chosen captain.

ED. MURPHY, THE CRACK FOOTBALL AND BASEBALL PLAYER

FROM COLLEGES AND SCHOOLS

Princeton Awards "P's" to Men Who Played in the Yale Game.

The following Princeton men have earned the privilege of wearing the university letter "P" for playing in the recent Yale-Princeton football game, the only game that entitles them to that honor: Capt. J. L. Cooney, P. M. Brasker, E. L. Rafferty, C. Carothers, J. C. Walter, N. B. Tooker, E. A. Bard, J. R. Munn, W. H. Daub, P. Dillon, D. G. Herring, H. S. Tenney, W. J. Phillips, J. B. McCormick, W. D. O'Brien, P. E. Waller, E. Dillon and F. M. Tibbott.

The Morgan Park academy team of Chicago won the academic championship of the middle west from the University school of Cleveland Saturday by the overwhelming score of 27 to 0.

Superior weight, speed, team play, and individual talent were the factors in the success of the Chicago eleven. The University school boys fought hard and played a keen game up to the last minute, but were unable to stop the plunges or end runs of Falk, Garrett and Decamer.

Garrett, Morgan Park's right half, who has been the hero of many football victories for his school, played the best game of his career. Long runs, quick dashes around the tackles, and straight plunges into the line made his work dazzle with brilliancy. Defensively he was a power that any varsity team would cherish.

It was Garrett's last game at Morgan Park. Next fall he will go to college, just where, he himself does not know. He leans toward Chicago, but Michigan agents have been "rushing" him for eight months and a merry fight for the youthful prize is anticipated.

The Yale and Harvard football elevens banqueted and broke training in adjoining rooms at Young's hotel Saturday night, but the atmosphere in the two rooms was as different as daylight and midnight gloom. Among the Harvard men there was silence, oppressive and heavy. In the Yale banquet hall all was jollity and mirth and the players sang and cheered from the time they entered.

The team had all been seated when Capt. Shevlin walked through the corridors. His father, the millionaire lumberman of Minneapolis, was awaiting him.

"Tom, my boy, I'm proud of you," he exclaimed as he clasped the big Yale captain in his embrace, shaking with emotion.

As father and son walked into the banquet hall the din was deafening and the modest captain was cheered again and again. After the banquet a short speech session was held at which Julian W. Curtiss, Yale, '79, presided. The team went to a theater in the evening.

Morse was the most keenly disappointed player of the lot, for he was the first Yale player to be ruled out in 12 years for slugging. All the Yale men protested this was a mistake and Morse hunted up Leary, the Harvard end who complained of Morse's alleged slugging, and Leary admitted he did not see any. Morse is known as one of the cleanest players who ever wore a Yale uniform.

The Pittsburgh college Sophs will play the W. U. P. Sophs today on the bluff.

Dan McGugin, the former Michigan star, has just signed a two-year contract with Vanderbilt university to remain as football coach at a yearly salary of $2,500. During "Big Dan's" regime at Vanderbilt the eleven has had an unbroken line of victories and has only been scored on once. The Dixie school will probably arrange several northern games next year.

Notcross, the captain of the Michigan football team, received a severe jolt the other day while taking a shower bath at the gymnasium. A freshman who was at the next bath timidly asked him:

"Are you out for the football team?"

"Yes," replied the captain meekly.

"The all-fresh, eh?"

"No," said "Norky," becoming amused.

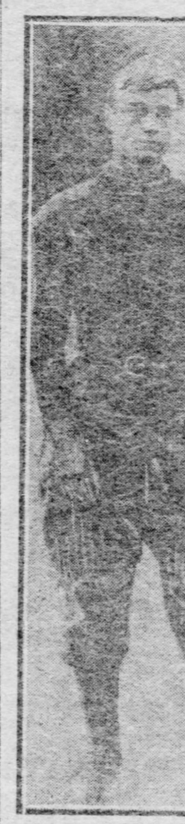
"What! Not the varsity big team, are you?"

"Yes, I'm trying for it," replied the towhead.

"Well, I hope you'll make it, I'm sure," said the innocent son of 1909.

About that time "Norky" finished his operations and made his exit. Several other men on the squad were still gathering about the freshman, and he looked pityingly as the plucky little captain limped out of the door.

"That skinny little kid certainly has got his nerve with him to go out for the real varsity team, hasn't he?" And the others smilingly acquiesced.



JIM MCCUTCHEON of Pittsburgh, who was the star of the Cornell-U. of P. freshman game Saturday. He is expected to make the Cornell varsity.

JEANETTE FOULED BY JOHNSON IN SECOND ROUND

New York Fighter Sent to Ropes and Is Carried from Ring Suffering With Pain.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Joe Jeanette of New York went down in the second round of the wind-up with Jack Johnson, the colored heavyweight champion, at the National Athletic club last night from a foul blow, and 10 minutes later was carried from the ring suffering intense pain.

The blow was delivered about the middle of the second round and when both men were fighting fast. Johnson rushed Jeanette into a corner and one of his many swings went foul, the blow landing several inches below the belt. It was thought by many that Jeanette was faking, but this was disproved upon examination by the medical examiner. When Jeanette struck the floor he immediately tried to rise, but fell back and became unconscious. His seconds worked over him for fully five minutes and then carried him to his dressing room. Referee Melligan announced to the crowd that the blow was foul.

Jeanette, to the surprise of every one, had all the better of the first round.

Commencing the second round, Johnson sent a hard right to Jeanette's body and swung another right for the jaw, but Jeanette was out of harm's way and came back with that bad left to Johnson's jaw. This appeared to anger the champion, and he went after Jeanette. Many of his blows, which had steam enough behind them to drive Jeanette through the ropes, missed, and as Jeanette straightened up after each ducking bee he nearly always managed to tap Johnson's jaw. Johnson fought Joe around the ring, and finally getting him in a corner rained right and left on his body, one of which went low and Jeanette fell to the mat. Johnson, not knowing that he had hurt Jeanette, struck him at least twice while the latter was falling.

When it was seen that Jeanette had been injured, policemen jumped into the ring and surrounded Johnson, but he was not arrested, as Jeanette recovered consciousness after being removed to his quarters.

Babb to Manage Memphis.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Charles Babb, third baseman from Brooklyn, today signed a contract to manage the Memphis team. Babb played with Memphis in 1902.

ED MURPHY TO PLAY IN SOUTH NEXT YEAR

Ed. Murphy, the well-known football and baseball player, who is now on the Canton football eleven, with Manager Williams of the Canton team, was in Pittsburgh attending the W. and J.-Indian game Saturday. Murphy came in to see his old college team, W. and J., play. Murphy played first base for Buffalo in the Eastern league last season, but will probably play somewhere in the south next year. He weighs over 200 pounds, and he thinks that by playing in a warmer climate he will reduce his weight and stay in the game longer. Manager Stallings of the Buffalo club owns a plantation in Georgia, and will winter on it. He has invited Murphy to spend the winter with him, and it is probable the invitation will be accepted.

Williams, who is manager of the Canton team, is also secretary of the Canton Central league baseball club. He says Canton will have another winning club next year. His team is about complete, except a second baseman.

HOGAN SIGNS TWO SPEEDY PLAYERS

AFTER OTHER LOCAL BOYS

Marty Hogan, manager of the champion Youngstown team, came to Pittsburgh yesterday and signed Pitcher Lew Schettler and Catcher Lee Fohl for next season. Hogan also talked with Frank Eastley, the youngster who has been doing such good work on the independent circuit, and has his promise to sign a Youngstown contract if he can get his release from Homestead.

"I will have a fast bunch of youngsters next year," said Hogan. "I am pleased to get Schettler and Fohl, and Eastley, in my opinion, is another promising youngster. I admire his nerve and his ability to get the ball over the plate. I have been watching the work of the young players for the past few years, and there are a few more youngsters I should like to have. There is Moffett, who played second base for the Pittsburgh collegians, and Uptegraff, the colegian's middle fielder. I don't know whether Charlie McCloskey will be with us again next year, and in the event of his not returning I know of no better man than Moffett to take his place."

Fohl will take "Peaches" O'Neil's place behind the bat. Hogan is negotiating for a lefthander named Castleman of the Salt Lake City team. This youngster has never been east, but he has been tipped off to Hogan as being first class. There were many clubs bidding for Schettler. Moffett is attending school at the Indiana Normal, while Uptegraff is at Lehigh, and will not entertain the thought of playing professional ball.

Hogan said he did not know what league Youngstown will be in next season. "It is a certainty there will be league ball of some sort," he declares. "The Tristate looks good to me, but if we do not enter that body we will organize a league taking in some of the best towns of Ohio. We are trying to have Sunday ball in Youngstown. The saloonkeepers and gamblers are opposing it, while some of the better class of people of the town favor it. The saloon and gambling element oppose Sunday ball because it means that the people will go to the ball park instead of to their resorts. It matters little, however, to us whether we have Sunday ball or not. We will be in the front again from the start, and you can put it down for a sure bet that we will again have a champion team."

Shadyside and Pittsburgh will each have Wilkinsburg for a game. Shadyside will play the Pittsburgh college preps twice. High school meets East Liberty twice. January 31—Wilkinsburg vs. Shadyside.
February 7—Pittsburgh college vs. High school.
February 14—East Liberty vs. Shadyside.
February 21—Wilkinsburg vs. Pittsburgh colleges.
February 28—High school vs. Shadyside.
March 7—East Liberty vs. Wilkinsburg.
March 14—Shadyside vs. Pittsburgh college.
March 21—High school vs. East Liberty.
March 27—East Liberty vs. Pittsburgh college.

Relay racing may be introduced in the amateur skating races this winter at Duquesne Garden. It is being planned to have a relay team from each Interscholastic Hockey league club compete when the amateur gliders meet. Alan Bright, captain of the Pittsburgh High school seven, is pushing the project. Bright is the amateur champion of the state. A. S. McSwigan, manager of the Garden, is another who favors the idea. The scheme will likely be adopted. Each team in the league can furnish a fast team.

Forfeit Is Posted.

The manager of Ned Chernof has posted a forfeit at this office to arrange a match with Jimmy Hanlon.

All the family will enjoy it. It will add just that desired zest to the dinner.

WORK THAT BIRDS DO FOR MANKIND

Economic Value of the Protection of Feathered Songsters in This Country.

EVIDENCES OF INTELLIGENCE

David D. Bruce, Esq., a prominent member of the Western Pennsylvania Audubon society, which has its headquarters in Wilkinsburg, is an ardent defender of the song bird. In the following paper, addressed to the society, he discusses the economic side of the preservation of birds:

I wish to do my part with other members in trying to excite a greater interest in the protection of all the birds in the minds of the people. Our comfort, pleasure and health depend so much upon this, that the more the subject is brought to their attention, the more their pleasure and health are benefited.

Our apples, plums, pears and cherries, in fact, all of our fruits and vegetables are corrupted and made unclean by the worms and bugs that infest them. We may use poison to get rid of them, but our efforts do not amount to much and the only remedy for the evil that would be as extensive as the country would be the natural one which nature provides for the purpose—the birds which live upon and destroy the bugs, worms, beetles, flies and other insects that deposit their eggs in the early fruits and vegetables, so that their young when hatched out may have their food to supply them with nourishment, so they make our fruits and vegetables the nurseries of their young.

The birds that come to us in the winter, when the ground is frozen and covered with ice and snow, live on the seeds of wild plants and the eggs of insects that would hatch out in the spring, and thus they do their part in nature in ridding us of some of the bugs that might annoy us.

Come When Their Food Is Ready.

But the birds that come up from the south in the spring come at different times. Some quite early, like the robin and blackbird, when the frost is partly out of the ground and their particular food is ready for them; for all the different kinds of birds seem to have different kinds of food, but still of various kinds for each variety of birds.

But when all the different kinds of bugs and pests are hatched out, and in the later spring the birds in hosts of many kinds come up from the south and feed on the different kinds of vermin that suit their tastes. Some live in the woods and live on the bugs and vermin they find on the trees; some in fields, and some on the well-kept lawns of private residences; and when they have made their nests, and are feeding their young, the destruction of vermin by them is inconceivable.

I saw in one of the daily papers lately an article on the question, "Do Beasts and Birds Reason?"

The brutes and the birds are clothed and have their food furnished by nature, so that they do not furnish many evidences of mind, not having their clothing and food to provide, as man has, who has to provide both of these vitally important matters for himself.

But in the case of the birds of themselves and of their nests and young, which are matters of vital importance to them, there seems to be evidences of mind action sufficient in providing a guard or remedy for some sudden difficulty which had never happened to them before and now threatens them.

Attack by Robber Sparrow.

In the summer of 1903 the robins were building their nest in the forks of a water maple in the front of my home on the lawn. I watched the building of the nest and saw the female setting on her eggs. She would leave her nest often when she went to search for her food and she would stay away for a long time if the day was warm. I watched her with my opera glass from the porch where I sat, and I saw that the nest was frequently deserted by both the female and her mate.

One day I happened to look at the nest and saw an English sparrow sitting on a small limb immediately above the nest and with his neck stretched he was looking down into the nest with the apparent intention of doing something. He then flew down on the edge of the nest and gave two pecks, when I yelled at him and he at once flew out of the nest and winged his way out of sight with a motion and manner that gave evidence of his guilt and that he felt it.

The robins came home and found the injury done to their eggs and the female spent a day or two wriggling and fussing on her nest evidently trying to mend them up. The male sat on a limb of the tree, wings and tail drooping and seemed in great distress. In about a week the female had laid more eggs in the same nest and had resumed her hatching and the male resumed his song and lively manners.

I have had several robins nesting on the trees around the house in 1904 and this year, and find that in every case while the female is hatching the male comes every now and then and sits on a limb of the tree on guard to protect the nest, but the moment the female returned he gived up his guard and flies away to attend to his own affairs.

I have seen this occur many times and know the male did not stand on guard until after this matter of the attack on the nest by the English sparrow. This new matter would require an exercise of mind, and how much mind it required I don't know, for how did they know or did they infer that sparrows did the injury to the eggs?

I want to tell you a very remarkable story about a house wren. I had a spring near my house and had a weeping willow growing beside it. On the willow tree hung a cocoanut nest in which the wrens had their nestful of young. The willow was a small bushy tree, and the cocoanut hung on one of the limbs not over five or six feet high. One Sabbath night about 11 o'clock a violent storm of wind and rain came on, and my wife said to me that she was afraid on account of the storm being so severe and violent that the wren's nest in the willow might blow down, and that it was a pity, for the young birds were nearly ready to fly, and they might all perish if the nest should blow down.

Imitated Work Done by Man.

The next morning I went on to the porch to see if anything had happened to the nest, but I saw that it was all right. As the young ones were yet in it, and it did not appear very secure, I went out, and with twine I tied the nest to the limbs of the tree and the wires of the nut, so that the nest was firmly anchored and could not be blown down by the wind.

In a few days the young birds forsook the nest, and I removed the twines and took the nest down, cleaned it out, and hung it up again. Shortly after this the wrens came again for their second hatching, and when their young were well feathered and nearly ready to fly we had another wind and rain storm in the night time. I felt afraid that something would happen to the nest, because I had not thought of tying it up again after taking it down to be cleaned.

I hurried out in the morning to see if anything had happened. The porch was 10 or 12 feet from the willow tree, and on looking from the porch I saw that the nest was all right, and tied as before, apparently; but I had no recollection of having tied it up after taking it down. I went out to the tree to make a closer examination, and found the nest tied in a manner that I had never used. Instead of twine, I saw that the strings were bark of a weed about two or three feet long; that they were not tied to the pendant limbs of the weeping willow, and instead of being tied to the wire of the cocoanut they were taken in to the interior of the nut, where the nest and young were, and fastened there firmly in some manner which I never found out. Thus the nest swung freely in the wind, which it did not do, as I had tied it to the solid limbs.

I showed it to many people, and it was several weeks before the bark strings rotted and fell away. Was there reason in this action of the birds? I could state many other instances of the action of individual birds that indicate reason.

Uniform Laws Are Needed.

In the spring the birds come to the north and frequent all the states. They don't know anything about state lines, yet some states fail to pass laws for their protection, and, while some states enact laws for the protection of birds, they in the same act outlaw certain birds. Different birds are outlawed in different states, whereas there should be a uniform and general law which would apply to all the states. The general government either should have the power to protect all the people of this union in the culture and raising of fruit and vegetables free from the corruption of bugs and worms, or else the President should recommend that all the states pass a similar act of protection, and that act should be for the protection of all birds except the game birds, and they should have the benefit of the act in a closed season.

With this exception, all the birds from the eagle down through the hawks and owls, should be protected.

Large estates have been dissipated through the bad management, extravagance and dishonesty of the individual trustee, which might have been saved by the appointment of the Safe Deposit & Trust Company of Pittsburgh with its corps of capable officials and its unquestioned financial strength. MIGHTY THRONG TAKES COMMUNION

Great Religious Outpouring at Closing Services of the Simultaneous Revival.

COMMUNICANTS NUMBER 3,000

Great multitudes of people assembled yesterday at the Nixon theater to take part in the closing service of what has probably been the greatest revival ever held in Pittsburgh. The great simultaneous movement of the Christian church denomination closed when 3,000 persons sat at the Lord's table in the theater and another thousand did likewise at the old Third Presbyterian church, which held the overflow meeting. On the lower floor of the theater sat most of the 1,600 converts who have been taken into the church as a result of this pentacostal whirlwind. Sixty deacons served the communion in the theater and 20 in the church, representing the 43 churches of this denomination which had taken part in the revival.

During the communion, which was extremely impressive, the choir of 150, which sat upon the stage, sang in soft tones, "My Faith Look Up to Thee." After communion the Rev. W. R. Warren, secretary of the committee which had charge of the revival, announced that there was a deficiency of nearly $1,000 and this was soon made up among the members of the audience. The Netz sisters' quartet sang, while their aged mother, who had come from Toledo to witness the closing exercises, sat on the stage and listened to that sweet story in song, "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord." They sang it with great expression and feeling, hundreds weeping as the sweet strains echoed through the house.

Speaks of Inter-Church Conference.

The Rev. Dr. Wallace Tharp, pastor of the First Christian church, Allegheny, presided, and the speaker of the day was the Rev. Dr. J. H. Garrison of St. Louis, editor of the Christian Evangelist. Dr. Garrison attended the inter-church conference held in New York last week and explained why the Unitarians were debarred from that meeting.

At the Third church the Rev. O. H. Phillips of Braddock presided, and the sermon was delivered by the Rev. Archibald McLean of Cincinnati. It required just 30 minutes to serve the Lord's supper, so systematic was the entire affair arranged. Yesterday's additions to the various churches are expected to bring the total number of conversions up to 2,000. In his address Dr. Garrison said in part:

I find people who think of the kingdom of God as something vague and hazy and far away. It is here my friends, right on this earth, as actual and real as any government that exists on the face of the earth today. The laws are here in the book which we call the Bible, describing the characteristics of the kingdom of God as given in the Sermon on the Mount—laws which show us how to become citizens of the kingdom of God. So real is this kingdom that if the state of Pennsylvania should pass anything requiring us to do something which you believe to be a violation of the law of God you would say, just like Peter and John of old said, "Whether we ought to obey man or God, judge ye," and then would go obey God even if they went to prison and stripes as they did of old. That is how real the kingdom of God is, and Jesus Christ is its King and its Ruler.

Governor Folk's Great Work.

Coming into the church and into the kingdom of God does not create any moral obligation; it is simply an acknowledgment of an obligation that has always existed. A great many things have been done in the political world lately that men said could not be done. We elected a little man down in Missouri as governor. The people said, "He means all right but he cannot enforce the law closing the saloons on Sunday." But the little man in the governor's chair said, "They must be closed, because it is written on the statute books of the state, and I have sworn to enforce the laws and they shall be closed." And they were closed. We sometimes speculate about what the church of the future is going to be. I can tell you. The church of the future is going to be the church that lends itself uncompromisingly to doing the will of God here on earth as it is done in heaven. Anything that God has use for to carry out His purpose is going to live. I can tell you the political party of the future that is going to prosper. It is the party that adopts laws and measures and such policies as are most in harmony with the purpose of the will of God on this earth.

The most significant sign of modern times in my judgment, my friends, is the meeting of this great Interchurch conference in the city of New York last week, to which 30 of the leading Protestant bodies of this country sent representatives to find out if there was not some broad and common basis on which they could stand together and make common cause against common foe. And they found it. They found it in their common faith in the lordship of Jesus Christ. They said, "We have our differences, but they are infinitesimal as compared with the great verities on which we agree, and we will meet upon our unity and we will form a common phalanx against the evil forces that work in our own land and the paganism which curses heathendom.

Barring Out the Unitarians.

Now, my friends, there has been a good deal of talk in the newspapers, for that was about the only theme that the newspapers seemed to take any interest in, about the exclusion of certain peoples upon this fellowship and co-operative plan. Well, if there was any exclusion it was in the uplifted banner which had upon it the name and the cross of Jesus Christ.

Brethren, there is only one banner under which Protestant Christians can come together and that is the one-starred banner, "The Star of Bethlehem." There is only one magnetic personality around which the broken and divided church can rally its scattered forces and make a common army against a common enemy, and that is the divine and glorious personality of the Lord Jesus Christ. Shall we then lower that banner by one iota, or compromise for a moment our faith in the lordship and the divinity of Jesus Christ for the purpose of satisfying a few people who cannot follow with us under that banner? Well, this body of representative men said, "No, we cannot do that. We have no unkind feeling to you, brethren. If you do any good in this world, in your ways of work, God bless you and God help you in it, but as for us there is only one leader we can follow, and that is Jesus Christ."

PASTOR GIVES ADVICE TO YOUNG MAN IN BUSINESS

The Rev. Dr. C. W. Blodgett Says It Is a Crime Not to Make the Best of Yourself.

"The Young American in Business" was the sermon theme of the Rev. Dr. C. W. Blodgett, in the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny, last evening. After preceding his sermon with a talk on the Jr. O. A. M., Dr. Blodgett said in part:

God designed man to be a part of this world. His native health is one of activity. We are to rub against the world and be rubbed by it. The young American business man succeeds today because he rejects the statement that a high type of piety is moral extravagance. It is beautiful to read of a boy sweeping the store one day and owning it a few years later. Such boys are noted for their rarity.

How to keep up a high plane of spirituality and commercial success is being asked by hundreds of honest men. Business should be lifted out of the realm of dishonesty. The choice of an occupation should depend on the taste and endowment of the individual. There are deformities and misfits in business. Business is not a speculation; it is a science. Commerce is controlled by laws as inflexible as those of nature; therefore, the speculator in imaginary values sooner or later loses all.

The fellow that wins today will not do business in a lazy, half-hearted way. Poverty has nothing to do with getting a man to heaven, but much money has often ruined men. It is a crime against yourself and your generation to not make the most out of yourself. Do the best you can, and then go to sleep. Work kills few—worry, thousands.

Will Celebrate Washington's Birthday.

Washington's birthday will be celebrated in this city next February by the Order of Independent Americans. In addition to the now contemplated large public meeting, and possibly a banquet in the evening, there may be a parade during the day of the councils of the O. I. A. located in Western Pennsylvania. This decision has been made by Past Vice Councilor Henry B. Markus of McKeesport, and State Council Treasurer Charles A. Henderson of this city, who are the western members of the board of officers.

IN DEFENSE OF THE EVANGELICAL

Dr. J. Kinsey Smith Says Uninvited Sects Had No Place in New York Conference.

HIS REPLY TO CRITICISMS

Answering the criticisms of the Unitarians and Universalists because these denominations were not invited to participate in the recent interdenominational conference in New York, the Rev. Dr. J. Kinsey Smith, pastor of Shadyside Presbyterian church, Amberson avenue, took for his subject yesterday morning, "Who Are the Evangelical Christians and What Do They Believe?"

Dr. Smith said that for the omission of the churches mentioned, the conference had been bitterly criticised and called a company of bigots and pharisees.

"They were simply left out of the call," he said, "because for very plain reasons they had no sort of right or place there and would certainly have greatly jarred the peace and good will and fellowship of the brethren assembled."

Continuing, Dr. Smith asked:

Why are Protestant Evangelical Christians called bigots and pharisees because they refuse to invite into fellowship with themselves people who repudiate almost every article of faith which is dear to them and their children?

Evangelical Christian Described.

But these people also claim to be evangelical Christians, just as truly evangelical as Presbyterians, or Methodists or Episcopalians—even more so, indeed, so they assert. Well, let us see. What is it to be an evangelical Christian? The word "evangel" is the word which we translate into English "gospel." Gospel is from the old Saxon word, "good-spell," or "good-news." The gospel is God's "good-news" to men. It is the message of salvation which God has announced through Christ to the world. An evangelical Christian, therefore, is one who receives and believes this evangel or good-news. This evangel or gospel was first formally defined and declared to the world by the angel to the shepherds, "Fear not, for behold I come to announce to you the evangel or good news that in the city of David this day is born a Savior, who is called Christ the Lord." We have a Savior who saves and not one who merely tells us how to be saved or how to save ourselves. And this Savior is called not only Jesus, which is the human and family name, but He is called Christ, which is His messianic and divine name.

But right here you will find out another thing which will show you why these critics, who call us bigots and pharisees, were not invited to this conference—when you begin to quote your authority for asserting that Jesus is also the Christ, our Divine Lord and Savior, they will tell you flatly that your authority for this assertion is without authority at all.

No Faith in New Testament.

You will find these critics have no faith in our New Testament, beyond a mere nucleus of fact and fringe of moral sentiments which it contains. You will find these critics throw overboard bodily and in open daylight every statement, truth and doctrine which is essential to the existence of a New Testament and historical Christianity—the inspiration of Scriptures, the incarnation and deity of Jesus Christ, the atonement of the cross, the miracles from God, the necessity of a new birth, a literal resurrection and a judgment of the world by the Son of man. How then, I ask you in the name of reason, logic, truth and common sense, can there exist any sort of intellectual or spiritual union between these 28 right protestant evangelical denominations in New York and those who were left out of the conference?

An evangelical Christian is one who believes the story of the gospel as it is told in the New Testament. He is no longer evangelical when he takes the New Testament, tears it to pieces, and out of a few shreds and patches which are left from his critical and unbelieving dissection, constructs a purely imaginary and human gospel of salvation by good works. I protest that such a Christian, of whatever sort he is, good, bad or indifferent, he is not evangelical.

SUNDAY GAZETTE IS A PAPER FOR THE MASSES

News Columns Teem With Interesting Facts and Its Feature Articles Are Unsurpassed.

All the news, the best in fiction, the funniest in pictures, feature stories for the thinkers, special articles for the business man, these all help to make up a summary of what The Sunday Gazette contained. Just how the paper could have been improved upon is a question hard to answer. The Sunday Gazette is a newspaper; it has a magazine department in which are choice morsels from the literary minds; but first and foremost it is a disseminator of all that is happening in the great, boundless world, and a perusal of yesterday's paper is all the proof necessary. And yesterday's number was not an exceptionally good one from The Gazette standpoint, it was just an average, and an average Gazette is what the other papers would call extraordinary.

The international fleet sailed for Turkish waters to make a demonstration against the sultan. Russian sailors mutinied and wounded their admiral.

John Alexander Dowie arrived home from Mexico, where he had gone to arrange for a new colony. Cadet Merriwether found many loyal friends who testified in his behalf. Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison was almost instantly killed in an automobile wreck, and other members of her party were seriously injured.

Miss Schenley has decided to live in Pittsburgh a part of each year. It has cost the Christian churches about $15,000 to conduct the Simultaneous revival services in Western Pennsylvania. Councilman Helmold hurled defiance at Citizens' bosses, demanding primaries and a convention to settle the mayoralty nomination. Gov. Brown indorsed The Gazette fund for Russian sufferers, and Zionists plan a monster meeting. Mine Inspector Cunningham was acquitted of manslaughter in connection with the Harwick mine disaster, and the costs were placed on the county. A number of Pittsburgh philanthropic women applied for a charter for the Home for Crippled Children. Twenty-seven women of the Allegheny tenderloin were sent to the workhouse for 30 days and fined $50 and costs; others got off with a fine of $25 and costs. Bishop Canevin was kept busy with diocesan affairs on the second day of his return. City Electric company will introduce, for the first time in New York, an ordinance in councils today for light franchises. Many Pittsburghers will take long cruises to the Mediterranean, China, and around the world. Pittsburgh, through various channels, has subscribed nearly $12,000 for the relief of Russian sufferers.

Before the greatest crowd that ever attended a football game in America, Yale defeated Harvard by the close score of 6 to 0. No consolidation of the two big leagues will take place this year. Fitzsimmons and O'Brien are both getting into fine shape for their coming battle. Bowlers increased their averages in the matches rolled last week. Nobody but an amateur can hope to put on the gloves in Chicago this year. Carlisle Indians beat W. & J., Old Penn defeated Columbia, and W. U. P. had a hard time taking the game from Geneva. Pittsburgh Hockey club is hunting a goal tender.

New York stocks closed active and irregular. Tennessee Coal & Iron advanced to the highest point of the year, selling 85½ points above United States Steel preferred. The weekly bank statement was much more favorable than the estimates, showing a large increase in cash and surplus reserve. The grain market weakened on reports of increased shipments.

Help! Help! I'm Falling

Thus cried the hair. And a kind neighbor came to the rescue with a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair was saved! In gratitude, it grew long and heavy, and with all the deep, rich color of early life. Druggists have sold it in all parts of the world for over sixty years. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

"I certainly believe that Ayer's Hair Vigor is a splendid preparation for the hair and scalp, for I have used it more or less for six years. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a preparation."—Mrs. KATE HOYT, Minneapolis, Minn.

BIG CROWD FAILS TO SEE THE FLOWER SHOW

Many Visitors at Schenley Park Are Disappointed—Art Exhibit Popular.

Hundreds of people who went to the Schenley park yesterday were disappointed at their failure to see the chrysanthemum show, which closed the previous Sunday. This fact was not generally known and the visitors at the Phipps conservatories were almost as numerous as on the Sunday before. Among the visitors were quite a number of excursionists from out of town.

Director Bigelow was expecting Miss Hermione Schenley, the daughter of the late Mrs. Mary E. Schenley, to visit Schenley park yesterday, but Supt. Burke informed the director that Miss Schenley had visited the park on Friday, that she had gone through the conservatories and had taken a drive through the park.

The art department was a popular spot yesterday, the three rooms where the pictures hang being constantly crowded during the afternoon.

Carnegie Music hall was completely filled at 4 o'clock for the 725th free organ recital given by W. K. Steiner of Pittsburgh.

The Highland zoo drew its usual big Sunday crowd. Until cold weather sets in the zoo will be the most popular place of free entertainment in the city.

CLERK KILLS MINER.

While Defending His Employer's Money J. B. Beam Kills "Jack" Butler.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, PA., Nov. 26.—(Special.)—Jack Butler, a miner at the Eleanora shaft, was shot and instantly killed last night at the home of J. B. Beam in Big Run. At midnight Mrs. Beam was awakened by a noise downstairs. She aroused her husband. Peering down the stairway he discovered a man standing at the landing. The stranger was challenged, but he continued to ascend the stairs. Beam fired two shots into the wall, expecting to frighten him away. Butler followed Beam into the latter's bedroom, where during a tussle Beam again fired. The bullet went through Butler's heart. Beam is a clerk in the Campbell hardware store at Big Run, and having taken the day's receipts home with him Saturday, it is supposed Butler's motive was robbery.

New York Success Coming to Belasco.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram," one of the most conspicuous comedy successes of recent years, will come to the Belasco next week. From the criticisms of the press in Chicago and New York, where this attraction has had long engagements, it is said to be funnier than "Jane," "Charlie's Aunt," or "The Private Secretary." George Probert, well known to theater-goers of this city, is in the cast.

With Lawson exposing the wickedness of high finance and revealing the wretched and rotten condition of insurance, investment, politics—

With Russell showing the marvelous power of the weak, when they work for one another—a few starving strikers building a business of $140,000,000.00 capital and billions of good works—

With a stirring story of Alaskan love and adventure, and a few mighty good Christmas stories—

Everybody's for December is full of stir, and thought, and feeling.

LET YOUR STOMACH HAVE ITS OWN WAY

Do Not Try to Drive and Force It to Work When It Is Not Able or You Will Suffer All the More.

You cannot treat your stomach as some men treat a balky horse; force, drive or even starve it into doing work at which it rebels. The stomach is a patient and faithful servant and will stand much abuse and ill treatment before it "balks," but when it does you had better go slow with it and not attempt to make it work. Some people have the mistaken idea that they can make their stomachs work by starving themselves. They might cure the stomach that way, but it would take so long that they would have no use for a stomach when they got through. The sensible way out of the difficulty is to let the stomach rest if it wants to and employ a substitute to do its work.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do the work of your stomach for you and digest your food just as your stomach used to when it was well. You can prove this by putting your food in a glass jar with one of the tablets and sufficient water and you will see the food digested in just the same time as the digestive fluids of the stomach would do it. That will satisfy your mind. Now, to satisfy both your mind and body take one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after eating—eat all and what you want—and you will feel in your mind that your food is being digested because you will feel no disturbance or weight in your stomach, in fact, you will forget all about having a stomach just as you did when you were a healthy boy or girl.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act in a natural way because they contain only the natural elements of the gastric juices and other digestive fluids of the stomach. It makes no difference what condition the stomach is in, they go right ahead of their own accord and do their work. They know their business and surrounding conditions do not influence them in the least. They thus relieve the weak stomach of all its burdens and give it its much needed rest and permit it to become strong and healthy.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box. They are so well known and their popularity is so great that a druggist would as soon think of being out of alcohol or quinine. In fact, physicians are prescribing them all over the land and if your own doctor is real honest with you, he will tell you frankly that there is nothing on earth so good for dyspepsia as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.
